Ike, Autumn and The Northwest

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 15—This is the time when autumn waits in the wings while Indian summer, soft as down and warm with grass-sweet winds, has her brief hour on Nature's stage.

She is a nut-brown maiden clad in the golden leaves of the quaking aspen, the yellow leaf of the willow, the gold of the balsam poplar, the scarlet of dogwood, the red and brown of maples, the honey color of corn husks.

One sees her from the air as the aircraft, detached from earth, flings itself through space. Below are the curving shores with their boulders and cliffs which increase in size as one journeys northward. Below, too, on the inward fields, are the tawny fields where wheat was cut, and the slopes of tan grasses which seem from the heights, to have been harvested by hand, so coarse is the bend of the leaves blown by hot winds of summer drought.

The days are warm, without heat. The nights are cool and damp. And, occasionally, in the morning, fogs will roll in like clouds playing a game with earth. For a time there will be mist on the cheek of man and on the windshield of his automobile. But always the Indian summer sun conquers, fixing her light on the leaves of trees, on the red berries, and on the new-cut fields of wheat.

But on earth it is election year. And one descends to its bawling, its dignity, its hypocrisy, its devoted, dedicated people, and to its tawny, designing ones.

Pioneer City

Seattle is a beautiful city. One thinks of it in terms of Lewis and Clark, of Indians, fish, and of the great trees which make her the lumber merchant for the world.

She is a pioneer city, become urban and sophisticated. But all about her are inlets, harbors, bays, islands, and inland areas where population is sparse and the land yet cries for pioneers.

But, like all America, she is a paradox. Industry came to her almost before she was out of buckskin shirts and leggings. Labor unions and the bawling conflicts of the waterfront are a part of her development. She must have cheap power to live. And her rivers were created for inexpensive production of it. The greatest issue here is those God-given rivers. Shall they be turned over to profits and dividends for a relative few, or to the people and jobs? This is the big political issue in this area.

On Tuesday afternoon, late, Dwight D. Eisenhower arrives here. There will be a great emotional crowd to meet and cheer him. Save for his, all political crowds are mostly contrived. Even his are in part contrived, but had no money been spent on calls, had no teams been named in which each would call 20, and each of those called 20 more, there still would be a friendly mob to greet and cheer him.

A Phenomenon

Dwight D. Eisenhower is a phenomenon. Huey Long used to say that he, Huey, was sui generis. But Huey was always the braggar. Dwight D. Eisenhower is something new in politics. He is truly sui generis as a popular figure.

It is this awesome fact which at once sustains, and casts down, his party. He is much stronger than it, as the Democratic Party is much more potent than its nominee. In 1952, General Eisenhower won by seven million votes. His party barely won control of the Congress.

Today, while the Democratic Party is astonishingly alive and at work, all visible signs point to a much closer victory by Dwight D. Eisenhower. Yet his party desperately is worried about the Congress and the state races.

Here, for example, Gov. Arthur Langlie, who is one of the young Republicans closest to Ike, selected by him to make the keynote speech in the national convention, is regarded as trailing Warren Magnuson, a Democrat with a gift for sitting on a farmer's porch and talking his language, as Langlie cannot do.

Next is Oregon, where Wayne Morse, who gave the GOP the back of his hand and went Democratic, is believed ahead of "Give Away Doug" McKay, former Secretary of the Interior.

So, the Northwest holds its breath, waiting to cheer Ike. Can he rub off his prestige and popularity on Langlie and McKay? That, indeed, is the $64,000 challenge.

China Backs Poles in Rift With Soviet

By SIDNEY GRUSON
(Copyright 1956 by The New York Times Co.)

WARSAW, Oct. 15—Communist China sides against the Soviet Union in the Communist world's ideological struggle over the number of roads to socialism.

Mao Tse-tung, leader of the Communist bloc's second mightiest power, has indicated to the Polish party his disapproval of the Soviet effort to reestablish a single Soviet road.

FRAGMENT OF TALK

This correspondent has learned from reliable sources of a fragment of the discussion that recently took place in Peking between the Chinese Communist chief and Edward Ochab, first secretary of the Polish United Workers (Communist) Party.

According to sources here, Mao told Ochab the Poles should go ahead in their efforts to obtain internal independence and develop their own Socialist system as the Yugoslavs have done.

The timing of the Ochab-Mao conversations was especially significant. They were held during the recent Yalta conference of Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia with Nikit S. Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders.

PERSUASION

In effect the Russians tried to convince Tito of the dangers to the world's socialism, of a too liberal interpretation of Moscow's promise of equality among all Communist parties.

A promise was given by the Russians in the Moscow declaration signed by Tito and Khrushchev last June. This acknowledged "different roads of Socialist development in different countries."

During Khrushchev's recent stay in Belgrade he spoke openly at a dinner given for him by Tito of the dangers to world Communism as the Russians saw them and referred directly to evidence of unrest in Hungary and Poland.

Tito, in a toast, pointedly reiterated the views he forced the Russians to concede in Moscow last summer. According to information available here, Tito did not budge from these views in the Yalta conference that followed.

3 Teen-Agers In Car Killed at Bartow Crossing

Constitution State News Service

CARTERSVILLE, Oct. 15—Three teen-agers were killed when the car in which they were riding was struck by a northbound train at Maxwell Crossing, about 12 miles north of Cartersville on U.S. Highway 411 in Bartow County.

Coroner Will C. Gaines identified the victims as Monroe Garland Jr., 17, of Plainville; Oscar Patterson, 15, of Rydal, and Evie Nell Adcock, 15, of Flex-A-Tile.

Coroner Gaines said the three were employed as cotton pickers.

'SUCCESS IS WITHIN YOU'

nologies of medicine. He called it "money sickness."

"Money sickness," he said, "is the commonest psychosomatic illness of our times." He held it responsible for many physical symptoms such as stomach trouble, headaches, back pains, aching joints and also emotional disturbances which might take the form of depression, hysteria or anxiety.

The difficulty, he explained, does not arise from the amount of money one has or how badly he may need some more; it stems rather from the particular meanings one attaches to money. What does money symbolize? Is one's emotional security attached to it? Does one associate it with love? Is it a catchall for anxieties?

The doctor declared, "One of life's major disappointments which almost every child experiences, is that his parents cannot provide Stevenson presented his views in a national telecast.

The Democratic nominee asserted that he had proposed last April that the United States take the initiative toward ending hydrogen bomb tests, calling on other nations to follow the U.S. example.

WHY WAIT?

Since that time, he asserted, both Russia and Great Britain have declared their willingness "to join us in trying to establish the kind of policy I have suggested."

"What are we waiting for?" Stevenson asked.

He declared that if he were elected to the presidency he would count it his initial task to "follow up on the opportunity presented now by the other atomic powers."

Stevenson declared that he would, if elected, immediately move into the hydrogen bomb matter "by conference or by consultation—at whatever level—in whatever place—the circumstances might suggest would be most fruitful."

He said H-bomb tests scatter radioactive strontium-90, "a table-spoonful of which could produce dangerous radioactivity in the bones of every individual."

CONTINUE PRODUCTION

Meantime, Stevenson said pending an agreement he proposed that the United States proceed both with the production of hydrogen weapons and with further research in the field.

Stevenson rejected the conten-

Red Bullets Foil Flight To Freedom

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 15 (UP)—Secret police posing as passengers thwarted an anti-Communist attempt to seize a Hungarian airliner and fly to freedom today in a mid-air gun battle.

One of the four anti-Red plotters was killed and two were wounded.

The attempt to wrest control of the plane from the crew and fly it to West Germany failed because the secret police had uncovered the plan with the arrest of another of the plotters before the airliner took off.

Last July 13, seven anti-Red Hungarian students seized a plane and flew to a West German airfield after a fight which injured all 19 persons aboard. But today two secret police officers hidden among the passengers opened fire on the plotters before they could overpower the crew.

An official announcement said the anti-Communists boarded the regular Budapest-Szombathely-Zalaegerszeg airliner this morning as passengers. Shortly after takeoff, as the plane flew close to the Austrian border, the four rebels pulled out submachine guns and pistols to overpower the crew.

But two secret police aboard were ready for the move and shot faster, the announcement said.

One of the anti-Communists was killed, the announcement said, and the others were overpowered after two were seriously wounded.

Ike Adding Los Angeles Talk Friday

Makes Appeal On GOP Record

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (UP)—President Eisenhower stepped up his campaign today with announcement of a major speech in Los Angeles Friday night.

He also issued an appeal to the people to listen to and judge the Republican record. He said he was proud of it, and will be happy to leave the result of the Nov. 6 election to the "honest judgment" of the people.

Eisenhower's visit to California will follow his previously scheduled four days of campaigning in the Northwest, where he will fly tomorrow.

CALIFORNIA PRESSURE

He won California's 32 electoral votes with ease in 1952 but this year there has been some GOP concern over the state. The Democrats are well organized and there is an 800,000 Democratic majority in registered voters.

Eisenhower's public appeal was in a talk prepared for the first of a series of short telecasts which the Republicans have lined up for the three weeks left before election. He said:

"The next three weeks are vitally important to every man, woman and child in the United States."

"On November 6, you will decide, by your votes, how you will live, work and prosper during the next four years. . . ."

PROGRESS AT STAKE

"On your decision will depend whether this country will go forward with peace, security and prosperity."

The program is called "Your Government and You." The talks will be filmed in advance and will run five minutes. There will be 33 in all.

Cabinet members will follow during the next three weeks. The President gave this lineup:

Secretary of State Dulles—"The 'Spirit that impels us in achieving peace and the record we have made as a nation in our united effort for peace.'"

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey—"How his department has checked the galloping inflation, cut taxes, balanced the budget and reduced the debt."

Secretary of Defense Wilson—"How we have saved billions of dollars on the armed forces, reduced our manpower requirements and still provided a more secure defense."

It will be the second marriage for both.

Mrs. North was Hand's secretary for eight years, serving with him first when he was speaker of the House and later when he was secretary of the State School Building Authority.

Hand, 52, said it would be a "quiet wedding." It will be performed at noon Tuesday at the First Christian Church in Decatur.

The couple will leave for a honeymoon in New York and Nassau. They will reside in Pelham where Hand owns a department store.

Jekyll Body Seeks Bids Though Fund Is Frozen

By JACK NELSON

Despite an executive order freezing expenditures on Jekyll Island, the Jekyll Island Authority is advertising for bids on approximately $100,000 worth of improvements on the island's hotel properties.

Authority Chairman Fred Aldred said Monday that Gov. Griffin had agreed to let the authority complete the expenditure of last February's $397,000 appropriation.

But Griffin told The Constitution Monday night that he had not approved the expenditures. "I don't mean to upset Mr. Aldred," he said, "but there's nothing to that."

Griffin, acting on the recommendation of a legislative committee, appropriated $397,000 to the authority last February. Most of the money was designated for hotel properties, leased by the authority to State Sen. Jimmy Dykes of Cochran.

$150,000 REMAINED

On July 25, after The Constitution began a series of articles on state money being spent on the island, Griffin froze Jekyll expenditures. About $150,000 of the appropriation remained at that time.

Aldred said that Griffin gave his approval to Jekyll expenditures at a recent meeting with authority members Mike Benton, W. T. Giles and Gould Barrett.

Barrett said Monday night that Aldred apparently misunderstood what happened at the meeting with Griffin.

"We met with the governor and it was agreed among all of us that work should be completed so the hotel could be opened," Barrett said. "But the governor did not agree to furnish money for the annex and convention hall."

"We deemed it wise to go ahead, though, and get bids on this work to see what it will cost."

OKAYED SMALL OUTLAY

The governor told The Constitution that he agreed only to relatively small expenditures that were already pending when he froze the remainder of the appropriation.

"Any immediate expenditures will be small and for the sole purpose of getting the hotel opened."

200 Jets Withheld From Tito but Ike Lets Aid Go On

Finds Nation Independent Of Kremlin

By DANA ADAMS SCHMIDT
(Copyright 1956 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—President Eisenhower conditionally authorized continuance of economic aid to Yugoslavia today. But he withheld heavy military equipment "until the situation can be more accurately appraised."

And he said he would keep the problem of U.S. aid to Yugoslavia under "constant review."

As a result of this action, the United States will supply Yugoslavia with wheat, but will withhold 200 jet fighter bombers.

Under foreign aid legislation the United States would cut off all aid to Yugoslavia unless the President determined by tomorrow that Yugoslavia still maintained a policy of independence from the Soviet Union; that she was not seeking Communist world conquest; that it was "in the interest of national security" to go on helping her.

$15 MILLION AID

On these three points, a day before the deadline set by Congress, the President ruled favorably.

This will permit the international cooperation administration to go ahead with programming $15,000,000 worth of economic aid which Congress tentatively set aside for fiscal 1957. More important, it will permit the State Department to begin negotiating on a Yugoslav request for $90,000,000 worth of surplus wheat, cotton, lard, tallow and edible oils.

CITES SOVIET DESIGNS

Technically the President's ruling applied to foreign aid funds, but officials explained that they felt it was in the spirit of the law to withhold deals for U.S. surplus until the President gives the green light on foreign aid.

In letters to the president of the Senate and the speaker of the House, the President said:

U.S. Pressed By Israel for Arms Sales

JERUSALEM, Oct. 15 (UP)—Premier David Ben-Gurion said today Israel is not eager to battle with the Arabs, but "if we are attacked we shall fight with all our strength to the end—and that means until victory."

He called anew for arms from the United States.

Ben-Gurion's broad warning came amid rising tension over the plans of Iraq to move troops into neighboring Jordan, which faces a general election Sunday with its people in ferment over powerful military raids by the Israelis.

Even as the 70-year-old Israeli leader delivered a major policy speech before the Knesset (Parliament), Jordan called on the U.N. Security Council in New York for quick action to end what it called "actual aggressions" by Israel and a most serious border situation. The Israelis contend the raids are retaliations for Jordanian killings on Israeli soil.

At the same time Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, chief of the U. N. Mixed Armistice Commission, said Israel's boycott of the Jordan-Israel team had stalled in its investigation of border incidents.

Ben-Gurion had a word on the truce organization also. He told the Knesset self-defense is a natural right "and perhaps it is more than a right, it is the duty of the state." Some of the U.N. agents, he said, deny Israel "this right of self-defense."

Otherwise, he says, the city will enjoy fair skies and continued mild temperatures Tuesday and again Wednesday. A high reading of 78 is expected Tuesday after a morning low of 55. Wednesday a range of 56-76 is due. Monday's extremes here were 54-77.

Andrews Tops President Slate Of Right-Wing Splinter Groups

By CHARLES E. EGAN

RICHMOND, Oct. 15 — Representatives of "splinter" groups from both major parties tonight nominated a "right wing" ticket they predicted would lure several million voters to its banner.

By acclamation, the 2,200 on hand chose delegates T. Coleman Andrews of Virginia, former U.S. commissioner of internal revenue under President Eisenhower, for president on their "Independent States Rights" ticket. Thomas H. Werdel, 51, an attorney of Bakersfield, Calif., was picked as Andrews' running mate.

EVERY SHADE THERE

Represented in the gathering which filled the main floor of Richmond's Mosque Auditorium, were spokesmen for almost every shade of "right wing" thought.

On hand were those advocating the end of the federal income tax, rejection of the Supreme Court decision calling for integration of schools, an end to foreign aid, adoption of the Bricker amendment curbing the president's power in treaty-making, and suspension of liberal foreign trade programs.

School integration, abolition of the income tax and a turn toward isolationism, in the order named, brought the most vociferous outbursts from the audience, as it went through preliminaries culminating in selection of the "independent ticket."

HOSPITALITY

"I want to offer the hospitality of our homes to some mighty fine Americans," Andrews told his cheering audience.

"I note that the President, Paul Hoffman, the Fund for the Republic and others are talking about writing off many loyal Americans as members of the Republican Party."

"The news stories indicate that these include Republican Sens. William E. Jenner of Indiana, George N. Malone of Nevada, Henry C. Dworshak of Idaho, Andrew S. Schoepel of Kansas and Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin, as well as Gov. Bracken Lee of Utah."

"SAFE FROM PURGE"

"I want to say to these unyielding patriots that our door is open to them and that we can assure them that with us they will be safe from purge of liquidation. We welcome to our cause all who love their country and sincerely want a return to constitutional government and a genuine two-party system."

Clarence E. Manion, former dean of the Notre Dame University law school, dismissed by the Eisenhower administration in 1954 as chairman of the President's commission to study federal state relations, acted as keynote speaker.

He warned that "the bipartisan aid giveaway program is about to involve us in war in the Mediterranean."

In an atmosphere of emotionalism, the nominations were carried out for the benefit of television cameras against a background made to look as much as possible like that of the major political gatherings held last summer.

A speaker's podium projected 30 feet onto the "convention floor" provided the stand from which Andrews and Werdel accepted their nominations.

Setting the tempo at the gathering was a hymn, the words composed by Amanda Worthington, 80-year-old spinster of Greenville, Miss., and the music by George Watkins, minister of music at Richmond's Grove Avenue Baptist Church.

PARTY FIGHT SONG

A double quartet from the Grove Avenue Church sang the hymn, "Our Flag of Stars," featuring one verse which started:

"Let no thoughtless court decree
"What our way of life shall be."

And another which began:
"Every star with equal light
"Not one state a satellite."

ASSAULTS COURT

In his acceptance speech, Andrews charged both parties had ignored the will of the people. The U.S. Supreme Court, he said, has discarded its law books for Communist novels. He deplored the stand of both parties on foreign aid and liberal tariff policies of the administration.

Manion is co-chairman of the independent states rights movement. Serving with him is John U. Barr, New Orleans industrialist.

S. Carolina 'Turks' Lose Plea To Top Court on School Ban

By CHARLOTTE MOULTON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 — The Supreme Court today refused to hear the complaint of a group of dark-skinned "Turks" in South Carolina whose children were denied admission to white elementary schools.

In another action, the court agreed to review the tax-fix conspiracy convictions of Henry (the Dutchman) Grunewald, the Washington wire-puller, and Daniel A. Bolich, assistant commissioner of internal revenue during the Truman administration.

The Supreme Court's decision against the Sumter County, S.C., "Turks" was contained in a brief order, with no written opinion. It left standing a lower court ruling that the Turks have not yet exhausted the state's administrative procedures.

The protesting parents described themselves as "people of brown skin" whose Turkish forebears came to South Carolina shortly after the Revolutionary war.

Their youngsters of high school age attend the Hillcrest High School, a white school, and a few of the younger children have attended white elementary schools. But most attend the Dalzell School, which is provided exclusively for them.

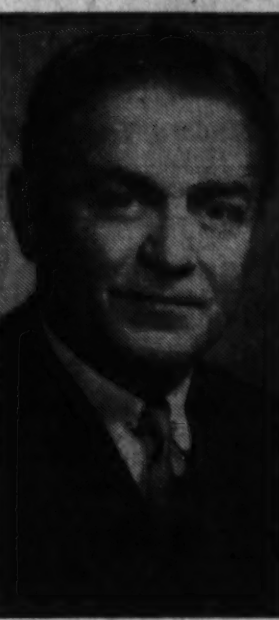

Grunewald and Bolich were convicted in 1955 of conspiring, along with New York lawyer Max Halperin, to fix the tax case against Pattullo Modes, Inc., a New York clothing firm, and the Gotham Beef Co., another New York firm.

All three were sentenced to three years in prison, but have been free on bond pending their appeal.

The appeal was based primarily on the contention that the federal statute of limitations, the deadline for beginning prosecutions, had expired on the 1948 case before the government obtained indictments against them.

The government contended, however, that the three had a continuing conspiracy agreement beyond the expiration date.

The court's brief session marked the end of the judicial career of Justice Sherman Minton, who is retiring because of failing health. His successor, Judge William J. Brennan Jr., of the New Jersey Supreme Court, will be sworn in tomorrow.

N.Y. Times Repeating Its '52 Support of Ike

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—The New York Times tonight announced its support of President Eisenhower for reelection. It had supported him originally in 1952.

The Times lists itself politically as independent. In a three-column editorial in its Tuesday morning edition, the Times found much in common between Eisenhower and Democratic candidate Adlai E. Stevenson.

"... in the area of many fundamental matters... the approach of both these men is to conciliate rather than coerce, to clarify rather than confuse, to unify rather than disrupt."

Turning first to Stevenson, the editorial said:

"We... disagree sharply with Mr. Stevenson's position on the Selective Service Act and we regret his willingness to encourage American parents and their sons to believe that 'in the not far distant future' we can dispense with this presumably unpopular but nevertheless indispensable instrument of American defense."

The Times then went to criticize Stevenson for his advocacy of high rigid price supports, his views on labor legislation, and his commitments in the field of social welfare legislation, adding of the latter:

"... we regard as an unhealthy and potentially dangerous trend this centralization of responsibility in Washington..."

Nixon Calls Adlai a Copy Of Truman

Woos Ohio Votes In Steel Center

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Oct. 15 (AP)—Vice President Nixon, plane-hopping industrial Ohio today, said Adlai Stevenson sounds "more and more like Harry Truman" and that the labor vote for Republicans will increase.

Nixon said in a talk prepared for delivery in this steel center, where many residents are labor union members, he is out to nail "outright misstatements of fact" he said Stevenson had made on economic issues.

"LOW ROAD CAMPAIGNING"

Nixon said in Toledo earlier that if anyone questioned President Eisenhower's integrity and desire to improve the condition of the American people, "he is engaging in low road campaigning in the worst Harry Truman tradition."

Both here and in Toledo Nixon said that the best times in the memory of most Americans came under the present administration.

He said in Toledo the Republican party will get a bigger proportion of the wage earners' vote than in 1952 because workers "are not going to risk their jobs, their high wages, their security and their peace by changing from the Eisenhower leadership to a Stevenson administration which offers only a return to the Truman policies."

TRUMAN TACTICS

Nixon said here: "It is clear... that Mr. Stevenson has decided to employ the tactics of Mr. Truman. His campaign utterances sound more and more like Harry Truman and his program in virtually every respect is the same as the Truman program."

Nixon, referring to Stevenson's remarks about "ugly patches of poverty and insecurity" still affecting Americans, said that today there are three million more families than there were in the Truman administration making more than $2,000 a year.

Like Father, Like Son? Happy's Dad Likes Ike

HENDERSON, Ky., Oct. 15 (AP)—Joe Chandler, father of Kentucky's governor, showed up at a Republican rally today wearing an "I like Ike" button.

"I don't know what my son (a Democrat) will say about this," the elder Chandler said, "but I'm for Eisenhower. He'll carry the state this year."

Estes Warns Dulles Policy Dilutes NATO

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver said today that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles "is like a man who lights a fire for the pleasure of putting it out."

The Democratic vice presidential nominee said that maneuvering by Dulles in the world arena has weakened the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and driven Britain and France to think "deep thoughts about a European alliance which would be independent of us."

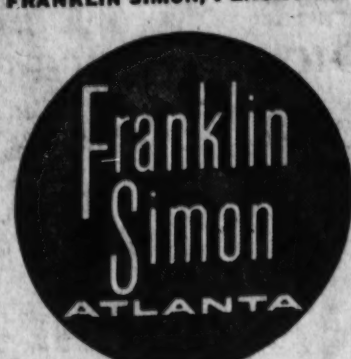

The Tennessee Democrat, upon arriving here on his campaign tour, also continued his attack on Vice President Richard M. Nixon whom he called "no friend of the businessman" in a speech earlier today during a stumping tour of Vermont.

Kefauver said the primary question in the current campaign is peace, but one of the gravest issues is whether the people of the United States want to "trust their destiny" to Nixon. The reelection of President Eisenhower, he said, would make Nixon the "man of destiny in the Republican Party and in the government of the United States."

Kefauver lashed back at Republican critics of Adlai E. Stevenson's views on the H-bomb tests and the draft.

He said the Republicans have failed to "change the conditions which require us—and the rest of the world—to keep armed to the teeth." Both the President and Dulles believe, Kefauver said, that keeping the peace means "putting out the brush fires."

WORLD'S LARGEST

Downtown a Mecca For Clock-Watching

By MARJORY SMITH

"IF IGNORANCE IS BLISS," asks A. C. Keiser, "why aren't more folks jumping for joy?"

DOWNTOWN ATLANTA has street clocks a-plenty. Timepiece landmarks reportedly are disappearing in other sections of the country. They're regarded as too expensive to maintain, too hard to keep in repair. Some cities frown on 'em as traffic hazards.

But nobody who works in downtown Atlanta can show up late at the office with the excuse that he didn't know the time.

Between Five Points and the Belle Isle Building alone are more than a dozen clocks, most of them telling the correct time to a split second, all large enough for the most nearsighted clock-watcher.

Atlantans' favorite is probably the minute-flashing electric clock atop the Belle Isle Building, the one advertising That Soft Drink. Since 1948 its 27-inch numerals—illuminated against a 33-foot circle by 1,990 lamps and half a mile of neon tubing—have helped pedestrians, motorists and Peachtree run transit riders keep track of the time.

Banks in the downtown area are partial to outside clocks. Along Marietta you'll find modern ones, alternating time and temperatures, and an antique chime clock with the 16-note melody made famous by London's Big Ben. A few blocks away is the department store clock that's a favorite meeting place for sweethearts and for women shoppers.

On side streets are smaller clocks, some behind windows, some exposed to the elements. Many have yellowed faces; you can almost hear a rheumatic creak as ancient hands move their rusty positions. But, old or new, public clocks are scattered all over town to keep busy Atlantans up to the minute.

LOCAL JUNIOR ACHIEVEMENT group of teen-agers, asked to pick a name for their plastic-dishware-manufacturing firm, came up with "Daddy-O Sewing Co." (Less cool heads prevailed, and the youngsters reluctantly settled for a squarer name—"Sew-Co.")

U.S. Educators To Stress Rural Training in 1957

The National Education Assn. will emphasize development of specialized education in rural schools during NEA's centennial year of 1957, the NEA president said here Monday night.

Mrs. Martha Shull told delegates at a banquet session of the annual National Conference of County School Superintendents that next year will be an ideal time to point up the importance of rural schools to the community.

Miss Shull, a pretty English teacher from Portland, Ore., emphasized the effectiveness of groups such as the NEA in accelerating school progress.

Miss Shull's speech followed one by R. E. Harris, president of the Department of Rural Education of the NEA. Harris said that mutual problems in rural education could be recognized in meetings such as the one now going on at the Dinkler Plaza, and answers sought in group participation.

Paul D. West, Fulton County superintendent of schools, acted as toastmaster at the banquet and introduced the speakers.

An interpretive dance by members of Hapeville High School, accompanied by selections from "Foggy and Bess" by a choral group from College Park High School entertained the delegates.

Monday afternoon the 696 delegates, divided into 50 discussion groups, talked over the points made in the morning address by Howard A. Dawson, director of rural service for the National Education Association.

Tuesday morning the groups will continue discussions and on Tuesday afternoon will tour the Ida Cason Callaway Gardens and several rural Georgia schools.

Harry W. Gross, Mineola, N.Y., was the presiding officer at the Monday morning session. He deplored the lack of trained teachers in all schools and particularly in the rural area. Further consolidation which would allow systems to compete with industry and with the larger urban systems seems to be the answer to the teacher shortage, Gross said.

Eight educational directors from Lebanon, Egypt, Jordan, Iraq, Syria and India, traveling under the auspices of the Ford Foundation, also attended the Monday session. The educators are making a world tour to inspect rural educational developments in the United States and other countries.

Habib A. Kurani, professor of education, American University, Beirut, Lebanon, is chairman of the group. Other members are Haseeb Mrouch, Lebanon; N. Bhadrachari, India; Ahmad Qasem, Syria; A. R. Najim, Iraq; Mustafa M. Dabbagh, Jordan; Dr. Louis Smith, Lebanon, and E. A. Meguid Fahmy, Egypt.

"We started our trip from Belrut on September 21," Kurani said. "We have already visited France, Denmark, Sweden, Great Britain and Porto Rico, as well as New York and Miami in this country."

"We have met with friendship in every country. Particularly did I feel in France, Great Britain and here that the realm in which people share is vastly greater than that in which they differ. This is particularly true of the field of education."

"In our countries more than 80 per cent of the population is rural. It is this vast pool of human resource that we want to develop through education. We hope to learn a lot about organization and methods from this conference."

"We all believe that understanding is the basis of friendship, either personal or national, and that a broad educational base is necessary for understanding."

V. I. Personae
most grata

Riding the Cloud 9 roster of Atlanta's visiting V. I. P.'s this week is the Board of Directors of the N. R. D. G. A. (spelled out that means National Retail Dry Goods Association). These distinguished Big Wheels who hail from all over this broad U. S. A. swept into Our Town yesterday to hold their two-day Fall meeting for the first time ever in Atlanta. Like all good tourists they will doubtless gaze at Stone Mountain, rubber-neck at our imposing skyline, drink in the glory of the Cyclorama and, naturally, take a bus-man's holiday to tour the STORES. We can't answer for rival emporiums, but as for us we're primmed up, shined up and decked out like a debutante to show off our shopping wonderland. We hope the N. R. D. G. A. visiting firemen like what they see at our house. But we can't help but feel a little sad that they'll see it only once. You, you lucky people, have all the wonders of Davison's right at your doorstep every day in the year.

Old Rockin' Chair? Phooey!

Mr. Thomas Collins, author of the fascinating "Golden Years" series that recently appeared in the Atlanta Journal, may like to add this little story to his lore on the blessed "Freedom Years" of Retirement. It is a true story of a dainty, petite, white-haired lady who retired (ostensibly) after 21 years in Davison's Iris Lee department. Ostensibly, we say, because as this ex-Davisonite puts it gaily, "Retired, my foot! My friends won't let me!" Scarcely had she cleaned out her desk for the last time, put on her perky hat and gone home to her "Golden Years" than the customers who had depended on her for so long, began ringing her phone off. Seems Davison's just wasn't Davison's without her! Seems they needed her advice about every little purchase and wouldn't she please come shopping with them! One distracted friend couldn't find a thing to wear, so her erstwhile Iris Lee shopper came to Davison's and found the two "perfect" dresses for her. We're withholding our friend's name and telephone number because right now she's up to her ears in shopping assignments. "That's what I love about retirement," she says, "it keeps you so BUSY!"

P. S. Just like you said, Mr. Collins, there's more to the Golden Years than fishing rods and rocking chairs!

Honeymoon hold-up

A low slung scarlet sports car up to its hubcaps in rice, old shoes and "Just Married" signs, drew up to Davison's curb just before closing time last Friday. Out leaped a luscious blonde decked out in a stunning mink-collared suit, a feathered hat and a big white orchid. She raced through our doors and made for the glove counter. "I left my going-away gloves at the Church," she gasped, "please give me some white kids, size 6!" She tossed the money on the counter, drew on the gloves and sprinted back to her waiting groom, murmuring, "I couldn't bear to start my honeymoon without gloves." Of course not, dear. A 'glove-less' honeymoon? Heaven forbid!

State Voting Record Is Among Lowest

Why don't Georgians vote in presidential elections?

What prompts this question is the U.S. Department of Commerce report showing that 50,000 people have been added to the voting-age population in the state since 1952. If the past is any gauge, only about a quarter of them actually will cast ballots on Nov. 6.

In 1952 when there was an estimated 2,152,000 citizens of voting age in the state, 30.5 per cent voted in the general election. This was higher than usual, with previous elections in the last 25 years showing as few as one-fourth voting.

The relative number voting in 1952 was the fourth lowest in the nation. Georgia had company, though, with other Southeastern states of Mississippi, Alabama and South Carolina voting an even smaller percentage. Through the years, this section trails far behind the nation in the number going to the polls. Sixty-two per cent of the nation's voting-age population cast ballots in 1952.

In looking for the reason for this lack of voter interest in national elections, one can find part of the answer in the primaries. In Georgia this year, for instance, more than half the eligible voters actually voted. This reflects the one-party system in which the Democratic primary is the really decisive election. Interest in the Eisenhower candidacy stimulated additional voters in the state in 1952 as the GOP made its most determined bid of this century. Should every election be so contested, the voting record could be improved greatly.

Most citizens, be they Democrats or Republicans, recognize that development of a healthy two-party system would contribute to a more active democracy in the state. This voting record in presidential election years is ample proof of that.

There's a New Crisis Daily in Middle East

The Middle East cauldron is boiling again. And Secretary of State Dulles' problems multiply daily.

While thus far the Suez crisis has been prevented from erupting into a full-scale war, the United States has succeeded in isolating its allies with an amazing number of reversals in policy that have infuriated especially France and Britain.

Whether this Suez policy has contributed to the newest headline-making crisis in the Middle East is problematical. But certainly the strengthening of Gen. Nasser has led to a chain reaction that now expresses itself in the Israel-Jordan flareup.

Nationalism in Jordan, fanned by Arab followers of Gen. Nasser, threatens the downfall of pro-Western King Hussein. Pressures inside Jordan for war with Israel have resulted in a call for aid from Iraq and other Arab countries. Through it all, Gen. Nasser emerges with further glory as the champion of Arab ambitions.

Should the United States openly support Israel with arms and other aid, the Arab states further will be alienated. Unless she does, Israel will be annihilated by Communist arms in the hands of the Arabs.

What answers Mr. Dulles will come up with this time is anybody's guess. But it is evident that the Middle East situation is headed for a climax and that Gen. Nasser's successful defiance is having repercussions throughout the Arab world.

Colquitt County Marks A Century of Progress

A number of Georgia communities and counties have been observing centennial celebrations this year. While a century seems a long time, actually the number of these observances testifies to the fact that Georgia is a young state with its finest years still ahead.

This week in south Georgia, it is Colquitt County's time. A splendid week-long program has been set and the welcome mat is out for people from everywhere. Moultrie will be the scene of pageantry and enthusiastic celebration as the entire county joins in.

Colquitt County is one of the state's most progressive counties and Moultrie is equally forward-looking as a city. As the county seat, the town has been instrumental in leading the way toward a splendidly diversified industry and agriculture. It has not been content to resign itself to the role of mercantile center but has promoted the interests of all citizens.

The county now boasts a population of 38,500. Moultrie's business and industry supports 12,500 of these.

The Moultrie Observer, one of the state's finer newspapers, celebrates the occasion with a 190-page special edition. It tells the splendid story of the county, its past, its present and its hopes for the future.

We join all Georgia in congratulating Colquitt County on its first hundred years. With such enterprise and spirit, the record of its second century should be even more outstanding.

The Crittenton Homes Do a Magnificent Job

For three days Atlanta has been host to the Sixth Southern Regional Conference of the Florence Crittenton Homes.

Delegates from Florida through Delaware and west to Arkansas have met to discuss their mutual problems under the leadership of Mrs. Hill Robertson of Atlanta, national president of the Florence Crittenton Homes Assn.

The Florence Crittenton Homes are one of the gentlest manifestations of modern society. They are places where unwed mothers may have their babies in peace and anonymity, free from the pointing fingers of the unforgiving and the hardhearted.

The Atlanta home is one of the models of its kind. The fact that one of its most devoted sponsors is serving as national president of the association shows in what high regard it and its staff is held across the land.

As one of the agencies of the Community Chest it deserves, and certainly will get, the support of every citizen of this area, for its cause is just and its appeal impossible to resist.

Democrats Get Chance To Support the Party

Today is the day the Democrats have set aside for their rank and file literally "to come to the aid of the party." In Atlanta and throughout the state there will be a house-to-house canvass, with volunteers seeking funds for the national campaign.

Perhaps the biggest problem in getting the Democratic story across is lack of money. Compared to the unlimited war chest of the Republicans, the Democrats are poor, indeed.

Latest reports show the party already has a deficit and that this grows with each passing week. Those who believe in the Democrats and their cause—and there are quite a few million of them in the country—are asked to help with small contributions to see them through Nov. 6.

The campaign headquarters in Atlanta reports it needs capable volunteers to help canvass the city. Covering a metropolitan area the size of Atlanta is quite a task.

At any rate, today is the day when all Democratic Party members can express their belief in its principles. Each individual should give all he can.

Judge Medina To Speak On the Athens Campus

Judge Harold R. Medina of the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit will deliver the first of the Ferdinand Phinizy lectures on the University of Georgia campus on Wednesday and Thursday.

One of the most distinguished of American jurists, the judge is associated in the public mind as presiding judge in the famous Communist trials of 1949. He also is an author, taught law at Columbia University for a number of years, is a trustee of that institution's Teachers College, and a devoted alumnus and trustee of Princeton University.

The lectures were established and endowed by Dr. F. Phinizy Calhoun of Atlanta, in honor of his grandfather, one of the most prominent Georgians of his day and a university graduate of the class of 1838. Georgia is honored by Judge Medina's presence and is interested in what he has to say.

Screening and Training Are Essential to Driving

A bus line which vows it carries "the world's most precious cargo through the world's worst traffic jam" has an enviable record for safety.

Children's Bus Service carries youngsters to school through traffic in New York City.

Last year buses on this line operated five million miles with only 61 accidents. The company gives credit to careful driver selection and careful training of those selected.

Once we make driver licensing in our state a matter of careful selection and driver education a requisite, then we'll see an appreciable decrease in the number of accidents. What is more important, we'll see a drop in the toll of human limb and life.

Tifton Citizen Flails Marine Training System As Unnecessarily Harsh in Light of Past

Tifton—The marine who ordered and led his subordinates into treacherous waters at night, resulting in six of them being drowned, has had his sentence greatly modified. So much so that repetition of such dangerous orders is left much to the discretion of the officer in charge.

The contention of the defense that the men became panic-stricken and thereby brought about their own deaths was sheer irony. Telling them that they would drown because they could not swim was a logical statement.

And, with or without panic, they could not swim. Were they supposed to accept this calmly? In this respect it is interesting to recall that during the War Between the States campaigns of Stonewall Jackson, he, his officers and private soldiers would hold great religious revivals. And this country probably has never produced a better disciplined group of soldiers than his men.

While this can't be the criteria for training marines it should be considered in contrast to a system which has such cruel and harsh methods of training.

'Halloween Carnivals Require Much Effort'

Austell—Should we or shouldn't we have Halloween carnivals?

Carnivals are supposed to be such that the children can enjoy Halloween. But let's face it—money making is the biggest interest now. How could a child enjoy the carnivals if he had no money? I know that lots of families enjoy the carnivals together but there is much work to be done to have a carnival and some parents must help the teachers do that work.

Now what happens to their children while those parents are working? They must go by themselves or sit and wait until their parents are relieved for a few minutes. I am not against carnivals but let's all do our part.

He Cites Experience With Some Policemen

Athens—I read in The Constitution the story headed: "Police Here Are Rude, Traffic Patrol Told." I am not trying to disagree with Mr. Snodgrass but in my two cents' worth I'd like to state that it has been my experience in the past 16 years to find that the larger the town or city the nicer the policemen; and in hamlets with one, he usually thinks of himself as Gargantua.

Humanize Capitalism Some More, He Says

Milwaukee, Wis.—A headline in a Chicago newspaper said: "The Socialist Labor Party Declares Capitalism Is No Bargain!"

I say capitalism is the best system in the world today. Nothing on earth is perfect because there are no perfect people. All that the capitalist system needs is to be humanized more than it has been.

We need more application of the Golden Rule in all our business and personal relations. The Golden Rule can solve all problems including unemployment, communism, hunger, divorce, racism and war.

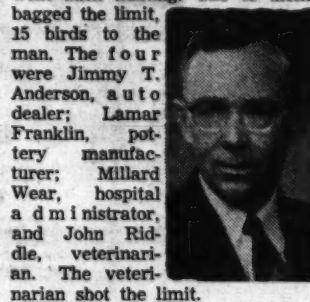

Christ's principle has never really been tried—it's time now to try it and put it in full swing.

A 'Fur' Piece To Find Ducks

Four Mariettans got up at 3 o'clock on a recent morning and went duck hunting. One of them bagged the limit, 15 birds to the man. The four were Jimmy T. Anderson, a auto dealer; Lamar Franklin, poultry manufacturer; Millard Wear, hospital administrator; and John Riddle, veterinarian. The veterinarian shot the limit.

To get up at 3 a.m. and be sure to find ducks, the quartet flew, first to Minneapolis, then to Winnipeg, in the Canadian province of Manitoba.

By rental car, they drove the same direction as Canadian mounted police go—northwest, that is, through Saskatchewan to Melfort, population 5,000, 52 degrees latitude, where the Far North begins.

The Canadian city practically declared a holiday for their guests from the Far South. They even warmed the weather up from a morning low of 19.

The hunting trip arose from the chance meeting of Millard Wear, president of the Marietta Rotary Club, and Dr. Douglas Swartout, president of Melfort Rotary, at dinner in Philadelphia last June.

The duck-hunting good-will delegation from Georgia carried pictures of the C130 and B47 for the Melfort burghers to hang on the wall of their meeting hall. They briefed their hosts on Georgia customs, crops and politics. Before they came home they shopped in a genuine Hudson Bay Co. trading post.

Melfort is as far north as grain can be grown. Wheat must be sown within one specific week in the spring if it is to mature before frost. Farmers work day and night for that one week. Early frost caught the crop in the dough stage this year. Farmers were docked 17 cents on the bushel because of the frost damage.

DIFFERENT BREED: You have to watch the headlines in football season: "Two Bobcats Out With Fractures" on the front page of the Early County News is no case for the fish and game people or the humane society. It means two Blakely High athletes have been benched by broken bones.

HIGHLINES: This is still the land of the brave. Otherwise how could they ever get judges for beauty contests?—Charles Bennis in the Butler Herald.

"Lord to Report for Duty Monday." So says a headline in the daily paper. Things ought to get straightened out now, but what worries us is who's been on duty all these centuries?—Loedel Coleman in the Bulloch Herald.

Evil's Dark Origins Are Hidden to Man

Yesterday I was talking about the father who had difficulty believing in God. He had brought his epileptic son to Jesus to be healed. The story is in Mark 9. No doubt one reason for his unbelief was the condition of his son. Here was a boy who could not play as other boys could. If he were left alone in the house he was liable to fall in the fire. He could not look forward to a normal manhood. Yet the boy had done no wrong. He was completely innocent.

This father had been told that God made us and that God was good. But if that be true, then how could we explain why a good God would make a child so afflicted?

Why would God allow him to suffer all his life when the child had done nothing to deserve it? Here we have an even greater problem. Not only do we become concerned about belief in God, but also in the character of God. Better to have no God if He is a bad God.

But if we claim a Creator God who is good, how do we explain all the evil of the world?

If I set your house on fire in the night I would be convicted of crime. Yet again and again bolts of lightning come from the sky and burn up people's homes.

It becomes even more confusing when one feels the evil of his own life and attempts to reconcile it with the existence of an all-powerful God who is good.

The problem of evil is one reason why it is hard to believe. But, if because of evil we decide not to believe in God, then we have before us an even greater problem. How are we to explain the goodness in the world?

For example, one can go to Calvary and if he centers his attention on the Cross with all its pain and suffering he might conclude there is no God.

One of the thieves who died by Jesus' side did just that. "If Thou be Christ," he said.

It was really a sneer, an expression of unbelief.

But the man on the other side of Christ fixed his attention not on the Cross, but on Christ.

As he saw Him, he began to believe and said, "Lord, remember me" (Luke 23:42).

A man standing by was heard to say, "Truly this was the Son of God" (Matt. 2:54).

When we concentrate on the crosses of our own lives, it makes for unbelief.

But, on the other hand, how do we explain music and mothers, sunsets and laughter, flowers and victories, if we leave out the existence of a good God?

Democrats on Top In Fight for Senate

WASHINGTON—If you think the presidential election is running close, you ought to take a second look at the political battle for control of the next United States Senate. That is what this column will attempt to do. This appraisal is based on the off-the-record views of the top professionals on both sides plus the pooled information of a number of traveling reporters together with visits to several of the states where touch-and-go contests are in progress.

Thirty-six Senate seats are at stake.

Of these 36 there are 13 in traditionally Democratic Southern and border states—Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Texas and West Virginia. There probably will be no changes here.

There are 12 probably safe Republican seats—California, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, New Hampshire, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Wisconsin—and there will likely be no changes here.

This means that the fight to control the next Senate is centered in 11 doubtful contests in the following 10 states:

Currently Democratic: Kentucky (2), Nevada, New York, Oregon, Washington.

Currently Republican: Colorado, Connecticut, Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania.

Within the range of these contests the outlook is as follows: The Senate is now divided between 49 Democrats and 47 Republicans and there will be no sweep either way.

It is not at all improbable that the Democrats will hold or increase their majority slightly even if President Eisenhower wins quite handsomely.

It is possible for the Republicans to win control of the Senate because all they have to do is to make a net gain of one seat. This would split the Senate 48 to 48.

Powell Dramatizes Civil Rights Issue

WASHINGTON—In the final weeks of every presidential campaign we usually see a few switches of influential figures from one party to another. Often such a transfer of loyalty dramatizes a particular issue. In the current case it is civil rights. This is the switch of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, New York Negro Democratic leader, to President Eisenhower from Adlai Stevenson whom he supported four years ago.

It was on the White House steps after a visit with the President that he made his announcement. He not only finds Adlai Stevenson wanting, but said he was smugged by the Democratic candidate, first in his efforts to confer with him, second when he was not invited to the recent Stevenson street rally in Harlem.

Republicans are elated and making the most of this new recruit. They are hopeful of results from the campaign the New York congressman promised among Negroes in a dozen big cities to try to swing as many as possible to President Eisenhower. All polls taken thus far in Harlem, Chicago and other big centers of Negro population indicate fewer defections among Negroes from the Democratic Party than Republican managers had expected.

Among the rank and file of Negroes the tendency is noted to remain with the Democratic Party into which so many Negroes moved during the depression years when they were beneficiaries of New Deal economic and relief measures. The economic argument seems more persuasive still than civil rights issues, though the latter weighs most with Negroes in groups which enjoy higher incomes.

It is Rep. Powell's aim to stress

6 Hurt in Traffic; Matron's Car Slams Pole

A half-dozen persons were injured Monday in traffic in Atlanta, police said.

In a crash at Englewood avenue and Hill street, SE, shortly before noon, Lloyd N. McClure, 3, of 802 Park Ave., SE, suffered a possible skull fracture, while his grandmother, Mrs. Bessie H. McClure, 56, of 789 Cherokee Ave., SE, was injured about the head and chest, police said.

Patrolman G. W. Sanders said he was told Mrs. McClure swerved her car to avoid an oncoming vehicle and struck a metal utility pole. He added the child was hurled against the dashboard and his head smashed through the windshield.

Mrs. Essie Ruth Godsey, 33, of 118 Phillips Cir., College Park, a department store employee, was treated at Grady Hospital for injuries to the right leg and arm after a three-car crash at Boulevard and Highland avenue, NE, police said.

Ronald Adamson, 5, son of Mr.

and Mrs. H. D. Adamson, of 1623 Wainwright Dr., SE, suffered head injuries when his bicycle was in collision with a truck near his home, officers said. Tony Michael Johnson, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnson, 258 Bass St., SE, was slightly injured when struck by a car at Primrose street and Bass, SE, reports showed.

Mrs. Pauline Sara Jones, 39, of 468 Boulevard, SE, a nurse, was injured in a fall from a moving car, Grady records showed. She was treated for a head injury.

It's a Reunion Of Atlantans In Coast Hotel

By RALPH MCGILL
Editor The Constitution

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 16—

Atlantans were prominent in the lobby of the Olympic Hotel when your correspondent arrived here yesterday with the vanguard of reporters covering the Pacific Coast tour by President Eisenhower. They were delegates to the International Convention of the Bricklayers' Union.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harmon of Decatur, were hungry for home news. Harmon is president of Atlanta Local 8. With them were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Drake of Atlanta. Drake is a deputy of the local.

R. O. Nalley and Fred Summers, the latter being vice president of the local, also were located and we had an Atlanta reunion in the lobby.

All delegates will leave today, a few hours before the President arrives. Mrs. Drake said it was exciting, though, to know they were staying at the same hotel

Unresolved Conflicts of Childhood May Erupt Later in Money Sickness

ness on the one hand and too often swing to a disdain (at least an assumed disdain) for money on the other. This is to assume that money has a character in itself, is either good or evil. Are arithmetic numbers either good or evil, or the dates on the calendar, or railroad timetables?

What is money, anyway, but an abbreviation for work? You can't carry four or five hours of your labor around in your pocketbook, but you certainly can carry the proceeds of four or five hours of your labor. Then, of course, you can exchange it for someone else's labor. Money is simply a convenient way of exchanging your work for someone else's. Money, you might say, is work in a portable, storable, exchangeable form.

The economically as well as the psychologically healthy attitude is not to want money but to want to earn money. Every individual has the right to hope that his contribution to the world's work will be such that he will merit great reward. But to want the reward without wanting to make the contribution is to be psychologically in the swaddling cloth of the infant.

A man I met in Pasadena, Tex., was in charge of labor relations for his company, a large chemical firm. When employee representatives came in to his office to ask for some increase in pay, decrease in hours, or any other emolument, he had a stock reply. "You are asking for something for nothing," he would tell them. "The rule by which we do business here is 'something for something.'"

LIKED APPROACH

The men liked this straight-from-the-shoulder approach. They also recognized that it did honor to their position; they were not asking for, nor were they going to get, a handout. Instead they had made the company man see just how whatever improvement they were seeking in pay, working hours, or working conditions would rebound in the end to the betterment of the company itself.

If they made a case they got what they asked for. If not, they went away realizing there was no more reason for the company to give them something for nothing than for them to give the company something for nothing.

Vinoba Bhave, an Indian holy man, a disciple of Gandhi, had as sound an attitude toward money as anyone — economist, philosopher, or psychiatrist — could wish for. For money when it is falsely regarded as a thing in itself he had no use; he despised it. He told his village followers that money in this sense "tells lies and is like a loafing tramp."

But Bhave had great respect, even in the spiritual world of the Hindu, for money as a receipt for honest work. He often told the worshipful multitudes who gathered at his feet that the best kind of money, the best medium of exchange, would simply be a form of script showing the number of hours a person had worked to earn it. Thus could a man trade labor for labor.

ALSO NEUROTIC

Not to want money at all is as neurotic as to want it for its own sake. Some people make a pose of despising money when what they actually despise is the other fellow's money; they would love to have more for themselves.

Some make a pose of despising money when they are actually trying to justify their failure to earn more of it.

Why not accept a realistic attitude? The worship of money, the abuse of money, the misuse of money are to be despised. But, by Bhave's definition, any man or woman should wish to contribute to the world as many hours as possible of productive work and to have the receipts to show for it. Any man or woman well may wish to apply these hours of work against goods of the world which he may plan to enjoy in the future; since work can neither be saved nor stored, he simply stores the receipts — and calls this a bank account.

STAR- EYED

Money to the healthy mind is a route to possession of material things. That is, possession not obsession. Many people cannot truly enjoy material things because they are obsessed with them; they are so blindly driven to the pursuit that they cannot enjoy the possession.

And so some of the starry-eyed among us have taken up a disdain for all possession, as though ownership were somehow wicked.

Somewhere between the neurotic obsession and the neurotic disdain is a healthy attitude toward material things.

I am sure Socrates would have welcomed the washing machine as a way of relieving women of one of the worst forms of drudgery (though in the light of his own marital relations it is doubtful that he would have bought one for Xanthippe). I do not question that Moses would have welcomed a diesel streamliner for the sojourn through the wilderness or that Mohammed would have considered air conditioning an asset in the desert, or that Jesus himself would have accepted the tractor and the harvester as a boon to the farmers of Judea.

The key is in one's attitude toward things: What do you want them for? How will you feel about them when you get them? Will they enrich you or enslave you?

A healthy attitude toward things has four hallmarks:

CREATING POSSESSIONS

1. That your possessions become part of you. The things you acquire are extensions of your person and, like the house you live in, become a reflection of you and a part of you.

2. That you love and care for your possessions. An infant begins to be a person when he shifts from breaking toys to fixing them. No one can be said to love a pet dog if he fails to care for it, and there is something of the same dereliction in surrounding oneself with material things and allowing them to become abused, neglected junk.

3. That you help to create your possessions, or at least make some sacrifice to own them. To the home gardener no lettuce tastes quite so good as that from the seed he planted and nurtured. No house will be so well cared for as the one a man helped build himself. No possession will receive such love and return such joy as one you have had a part in creating (such as the rug a woman hooks herself, or the sailboat a man has rebuilt from an old wreck he bought after a storm). In these days of division of labor and ultra-specialization there are fewer and fewer opportunities to take part in the creation of things, but the same result is achieved when you patiently put aside a little money this week, next week and the week after so that you may buy a thing your heart is set on. The element of sacrifice infuses a little bit of yourself into the thing you own.

4. That you are able to spend some time with your possessions; that you are able to enjoy them. A child is said not to enjoy his toys when he quickly pushes them aside and his eyes begin to wander for some shiny new interest.

We note that he is beginning to enjoy his electric train when he spends a sustained period of time with it. Adults can measure their own attitude toward things in quite the same way. If new possessions quickly pall and fail to provide the satisfactions which were hoped for, there is an infantile attitude somewhere in the woodpile. With a grown-up, healthy attitude the possessor often grows fonder of his possessions as time goes on. He devotes time and interest to them and finds that in a growing measure they reward him with enjoyment.

the House of Representatives, the President offered the following explanations for his decision.

1. "The balance of available evidence leads me to find that Yugoslavia remains independent of control by the Soviet Union and desires to continue to be independent." This remains true even though Soviet designs against Yugoslavia have become "more subtle" and Yugoslavia probably is not adequately defending herself against Soviet designs.

2. Yugoslavia appears to adhere to the idea that "each nation should determine for itself which kind of society it wishes and that there would be no interference by one nation in the internal affairs of another."

3. Without American aid "there is danger that Yugoslavia will be unable to maintain its independence."

The President followed this positive decision with cautious conditions.

In the military field, he said, deliveries will continue to be confined, as since July of this year, to "small, routine and long-planned deliveries of equipment."

Out of a program for delivery of equipment the United States has given Yugoslavia since President Joseph Broz (Tito) broke with the Kremlin in 1948.

In 1955 about 13,000 farm people in the U.S. were killed in farm accidents.

Also withheld will be some tanks, and a few howitzers.

Military deliveries will consist mostly of spare parts and maintenance items for an estimated $500,000,000 worth of military equipment the United States has given Yugoslavia since President Joseph Broz (Tito) broke with the Kremlin in 1948.

Fund Frozen, Jekyll Body Asking Bids

pose of having a hotel room ready to rent to the public," he said.

Griffin said, "It is all right if the authority wants to advertise for bids. But I don't know whether I'll approve the expenditure. As of now, the money is frozen."

He said that before any Jekyll purchases are made by the authority he and Purchasing Supervisor Lawton Shaw "will study every one of them."

"If a door is to be hung and a bid is asked, I will go over it with Mr. Shaw," Griffin said.

Asked if he still plans to urge the General Assembly to sell the state-owned island, the governor indicated he does. He said: "I will make my position crystal clear in my speech to the General Assembly."

The authority is advertising for bids on two projects:

1. Furnishing of all materials, labor, equipment and services to rehabilitate the Jekyll Hotel Annex Building, including alterations, repairs, painting and reconditioning.

2. Additions and alterations to the State Convention Hall Building (an old indoor tennis court structure), including heating, air conditioning, plumbing, electrical installations and painting.

Eden Obstructs Canal Peace, Egypt Replies to Force Hint

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 15 (AP)—Egypt today accused British Prime Minister Eden of throwing obstacles in the way of Suez peace negotiations and of lessening their chances for success.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi expressed particular concern over Eden's statement to a Conservative party conference that Britain would not rule out the use of force.

It was unfortunate, Fawzi said in a letter to the Security Council, that Eden had made this declaration just as the Council was approving a set of six principles as a basis for negotiating a settlement of the problem.

The letter was circulated as a final round of private meetings wound up the current phase of the Suez discussions. No time and place has been set for a resumption of the talks. Diplomatic quarters said there may be a meeting of the British, French and Egyptian foreign ministers in Europe later this month.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd talked with U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld for almost two hours this morning on both the Suez and Palestine problems.

Before leaving by plane for London, Lloyd told newsmen a little progress had been made on the crisis but if Egypt offered no acceptable proposals "a very serious situation would develop."

19 Congressmen Rode Luxury Liners Free

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—The government-owned Panama Canal Co. yielded to public pressure and presidential opinion today and disclosed that three U.S. senators and 16 representatives have traveled free on its luxury liners during the last 15½ months.

The company revealed that six employees of congressional committees also traveled free on 15-day cruises to the canal and that the junketers were accompanied by a total of 35 dependents who were required to pay only 25 per cent of the usual passenger fares, which range from $351 to $550.

OPEN FILES TO NEWSMEN

Passenger lists for the company's three sister ships, the Ancon, Cristobal and Panama, were handed to reporters this morning on orders of the canal company's board of directors. The board voted in Washington Saturday to open files long demanded by newsmen seeking facts and figures on congressional junkets financed by taxpayers.

The action was taken following a statement by President Eisenhower at his Thursday news conference that he could see "no reason on earth" why the passenger lists should not be made public here as they are in Panama. The canal company steamship line is owned and operated by the federal government to carry supplies and personnel to the U.S.-run Panama Canal Zone. The three ships have interiors designed by Raymond Loewy and are equipped with swimming pool, a deck cafe and other luxuries of sea travel.

Mail Check Now, Save County Tax Penalty

Fulton County's deadline for payment of property taxes passed Monday with just a little over half of the expected revenue written on the books as collected.

Although there were no lengthy lines at the office of County Tax Commissioner T. E. Suttler, business was reported "brisk" at payment windows during the day.

Chief Deputy Tax Commissioner Standish Thompson said although citizens who have not paid county taxes yet are actually past the non-penalty deadline, they still may save payment of interest if they mail in payments while the office is "working the mail."

Squealing Girls Mob TeenStar at Savannah

Things haven't been the same at historic Hotel De Soto in Savannah since the arrival of young actor Sal Mineo, dark-eyed rival of Elvis Presley for bobby sox adulation.

From the time the 17-year-old movie star stepped off the plane he has been stormed by hundreds of squealing, autograph-hunting girls.

The bedlam at the hitherto quiet hotel became so pronounced as bands of wide-eyed teen-agers jammed elevators, scrambled up stairs and raced through halls that Police Chief Sid Barnes assigned a special officer to keep order.

Finally, a mass autograph party was arranged. One of the hotel's largest banquet rooms was used and it was jammed—not only by the bobby-soxers themselves but by some of their mothers also.

Mineo is here for the filming of his latest picture, "The Cunnings and the Haunted."

Governor Would Help Decide Amendment's Influence Area

This is the second in a series explaining the effects of proposed state-wide amendments which will be on the Nov. 6 ballot. The second amendment would change the method of approving constitutional amendments.

Principle feature of the new proposal is that it would allow a committee composed of the governor, the attorney general and the secretary of state to decide the extent of influence of a proposed amendment.

If the committee concluded that the amendment is of state-wide effect, then the proposal would have to receive a majority of votes in a state-wide election. That is the system followed now.

However, if they decided that the amendment would affect only certain sections of the state, they would be required to name those sections. Voting on the amendment would be limited to those political subdivisions, and each subdivision would have to give majority approval to the plan.

Tyranny Laid To Top Court By Talmadge

Senator-nominee Herman Talmadge Monday accused the U.S. Supreme Court of "judicial tyranny." He declared:

"Unless we get back to the fundamental principles on which this country was founded, we will wake up one morning and instead of the land of the free and of the brave we will find we are the land of the timid and of the regulated."

Talmadge told the Atlanta Rotary Club that "most of the concentration of power in Washington in recent years has been by judicial decree."

He said that the Supreme Court, in the 1954 decision outlawing public school segregation, "set itself up as a super-duper, glorified board of education."

"Many good people thought the decision affected only the South," Talmadge said. "They said that maybe we had mistreated the colored people and that we got what we deserved."

He said that other decisions which followed showed that states throughout the country would feel the impact of the court's "judicial tyranny." He pointed out that the court ruled that New York could not fire a teacher who invoked the Fifth Amendment in refusing to say whether he was a Communist.

Another example, he said, was the court's decision this year in ruling that the state sedition (treason) laws are unconstitutional.

life insurance

Americans now own more than twice as much life insurance as they did just ten years ago. Today, about 9 out of every 10 fathers own one or more life insurance policies.

Through life insurance they can be sure of immediate protection for the amount they have planned for their families. It's money they can count on. And, because life insurance is flexible, they can fit its protection to their particular family needs.

Your own policies offer various choices that can help you keep your life insurance protection in line with your family's changing needs. Making the wisest choice calls for experienced help. The best person to advise you is your own life insurance agent.

You will also find helpful suggestions in the new booklet, Your Life Insurance—And How to Use It, which we have prepared as a service for America's policyholders. Your free copy will be mailed promptly; simply send your name and address on a postcard to Dept. A.

Budget Law Is Adequate, Griffin Says

Gov. Griffin said Monday night he saw "no reason" why anyone should want to restrict his budget powers.

"By goodness alive," said the governor, "I don't especially want to handle the state's money. But somebody has to do it between sessions of the Legislature."

Griffin made his remarks during the first in a series of three weekly public service television programs on WSB-TV explaining the functions of state government.

"I see no reason for changing the present budget laws," said Griffin. "It was a good enough law for other governors."

What's wrong with the law in the Marvin Griffin administration?

He praised the General Assembly's "magnificent spirit of co-operation" and denied he ever had "tried to bully them" in dealing with budget matters.

The governor apparently aimed his remarks at Sen. Nominate Fred Bentley of Marietta, who said he plans to introduce a bill to restrict the governor's budget powers.

"I only do what the General Assembly tells me to do" in handling state funds, Griffin said.

Griffin asserted that Georgia is operating on a "sound economy with a comfortable surplus."

Congressman, Ike Aide Clash on 'Real' Issues

By GENE LEGETTE

Democratic and Republican spokesmen clashed on the "real" issues of the presidential campaign in a debate Monday night at the New Jewish Community Center on Peachtree road.

Speaking first, Rep. Ed Edmundson (D-Okla.) charged that "the only real hope of the Democratic Party is this campaign is to talk to enough people to offset the Republican propaganda barrage."

He cited the Oct. 8 issue of Life Magazine as "typical of what the Democrats can expect in a 'news' magazine," reflecting that while a large portion of the issue was given over to works of Eisenhower administration, the Democratic candidates were only mentioned twice "on the last page of the letters to the editor column."

He challenged Maxwell Rabb, secretary of the Eisenhower cabinet, to "name two pieces of legislation representing social progress for the American people that was passed with a larger Republican than Democratic vote."

Rabb countered with a list of 10 Department of Labor sponsored proposals that were passed in the Republican controlled 83rd Congress, but said only two and a half of 13 proposals were passed in the Democratic 84th.

The "basis issue," Rabb said, is that President Eisenhower, "one of our most precious natural resources," is seeking confirmation in office from the people.

"The basic failure of this administration is our failure to tell the story of what we have done," Rabb said in recounting successes of the Eisenhower administration.

Earlier, Rabb told a delegation at the Butler Street YMCA that if Eisenhower is reelected there will be more Southern states with the two-party system than ever before.

Rabb said if the President can get a strong Congress of Republicans during the next four years his program will "go over the top."

Youths Here Maul 3 for Offering Aid

Three persons were severely mauled late Monday by a gang of youths after one of the three volunteered to bandage the injured hand of a teen-ager, police said.

The melee occurred at the canteen for teen-agers at East Lake Park, Memorial drive and Daniel street, SE.

BROKE GLASS PANEL. Injured were Stephen Thomas, 22, of 15 Clarendon Dr., Avondale, bruised nose and face; John Gorman, 20, of 914 Williams Mill Rd., NE, scalp injury and bruised face, and Bob Williams, 21, of 4337 Kensington Rd., Avondale, bruised face and nose.

Patrolmen G. T. Hodges and D. L. Prince said they were told a youth broke a glass panel inside the canteen and cut his hand. They said Thomas, an employee of the City Recreation Department, offered to bandage the injury.

The youth, believed to be a high school student, struck Thomas on the nose, officers were told. Witnesses said another unidentified youth joined in when Williams attempted to aid Thomas.

ATTACKED OUTSIDE The two youths left, officers said, but when Williams and Gorman later left the clubhouse, they were attacked and severely mauled.

Thomas, Williams and Gorman were treated at Grady Hospital.

"Reasonable diet and reasonable exercise are your best methods for the battle of the bulge."—Health column quote.

The diet craze has swept the land . . . and what we cannot understand . . . is why some women want to look . . . slender as a shepherd's crook . . . for I am sure each one deserves . . . a silhouette with some few curves.

There are two ways for getting thin . . . and one is, when you first begin . . . to add a little extra weight . . . take little food upon your plate . . . no starch, no sugar and no fat . . . then only eat one half of that.

Also, be active; it is wise . . . for this helps to reduce the size . . . of some one section that appears . . . to grow much larger through the years . . . and although neither is much fun . . . you do feel better when it's done.

I said, one day, just for a joke . . . "the trouble with you womenfolk . . . you lead such sedentary lives . . . the country's full of fatted wives . . . if women would get up and walk . . . as much as they sit down and talk . . . the sidewalks soon would be worn out . . . and women wouldn't be so stout" . . . which didn't seem to please my frau . . . and I'm the one who's walking now."

The bidding:
North East South West
1 heart Pass 1 spade Pass
2 hearts Pass 3 spades Pass
4 spades Pass 4 pass Pass

Opening lead: Six of hearts.

The use of a decoy was deftly employed by South to bring in an entirely unmakeable contract in today's offering. It is worthy of note that in relying on human frailty declarer deliberately assumed the risk of going down an additional 300 points. His eye was on bigger things.

West's double was on the enterprising side. In an effort to conserve his assets he refrained from making an attacking lead and chose dummy's suit. This was won in the North hand with the king, and the nine of spades drove out the queen. Another heart came back. At this point the dummy was permanently disconnected from the master hand, and it would seem that the ace of diamonds should be cashed to assure that the damages would be limited to a one trick set. But such action would disclose declarer's entire holding and reveal to the opponents that South had nothing but black cards left, rendering the defense open and shut.

Declarer decided, therefore, to leave the ace of diamonds in dummy to serve as a decoy. He played the eight of spades, and on winning with the ace West got out with a trump, and South played three more rounds of spades, retaining one trump and four clubs. Dummy's remaining cards were the three diamonds, a heart and a club.

To West it naturally appeared that South had some threatening holding in diamonds, and he decided to keep that suit intact. He, therefore, let go a club and held on to K-10-6 of diamonds and K-10 of clubs. East too, stood in fear of the diamond suit and decided to hold on to the Q-9-7. This left him with a heart and a club.

Declarer now played the ace and another club, felling the entire suit, and claimed the remainder of the tricks.

Texans Don't Lay Drought to Ike But They're Going Back to Adlai

By WILLIAM S. WHITE

Participating Reporters: Clarence Dean, Tillman Durkin, Max Frankel and John D. Morris (Copyright 1956 by The New York Times Co.)

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 15—On a ranch west of Austin the doves came in at dusk over the parched liveoak trees and circled the dab of alkaline mud that used to be a waterhole.

The pump shotgun in the hands of the rancher, A. W. Moursund, leaped twice and two birds fell. Dr. Moursund turned to a visitor, removed his wide hat, and said quietly:

"God, surely sometime, sometime, it must rain."

BEHIND THE LINES
Gov. Shivers

No expression could be more nearly typical in rural Texas these days. The drought is the nearest thing to a sharp political issue in all but the urban areas of the state.

As of now, the drought and, most of all, the pull of old tradition and loyalties are turning Texas back to the Democratic party in the presidential campaign.

ADLAI APPEARS AHEAD

At this moment, Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic nominee, is apparently running ahead of President Eisenhower for this state's 24 electoral votes, by far the largest bloc in the South. All the same, Mr. Stevenson's victory on election day cannot be assumed without qualification.

The Democratic campaign in this state got off to an early start. It now seems to be gaining, if at all, only on a very slowly ascending arc. The campaign on behalf of President Eisenhower—a campaign controlled by dissident Democrats and not by Republicans—is only now opening strongly and is rising in power.

Finally, the most responsible of the Stevenson backers concede that if the President enters Texas, his native state, for a speech or two he might win here after all. This is the sum of a New York Times survey in some of the major economic and geographic subdivisions of this vast sprawling state.

PRIZE FOR 'PROS'

Texas is an electoral prize. It is the largest and most influential of the four Southern states that bolted and went for Gen. Eisenhower in 1952. It is being fought for, remorselessly and without quarter but with no bitterness, by two groups of highly competent political "pros."

The rank and file of the people, who have had a surfeit of politics in a series of spectacular intra-party Democratic fights since May, are tired and will be quite glad when it is all over.

They are nevertheless preparing to cast perhaps 2,000,000 votes.

The Stevenson "pros" are headed by the Democratic leaders of Congress. They are Sam Rayburn of Bonham, Tex., the speaker of the House of Representatives, and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Johnson City, the Democratic chief of the Senate.

The Eisenhower phalanx is being led by the right-wing retiring Texas Democratic governor, Allan Shivers, and by a skilled associate, Weldon Hart. The word "Republican" is forbidden to these forces. In advertising, in speeches, on billboards, everywhere, they talk only about "Eisenhower" or "Ike."

The Rayburn-Johnson people are appealing to the farm and small-town folk, to the Court-houses of 254 Texas counties, to the traditions of a state that has gone Republican nationally only twice since Reconstruction.

Mr. Hart, with Gov. Shivers in the background, is aiming for the urban vote, and paying only qualified attention to the hinterland.

The contest here, in fact, is in a real sense between booming urban Texas, with its extraordinary concentration of big cars and fur coats, and farm and ranch Texas.

In this latter part of Texas, uncounted millions of acres lie under the searing blight of a drought that is seven years old in the western section and two years old in some other sections.

CANVASS PUBLIC OFFICIALS
Mr. Hart uses the techniques of advertising. Mr. Rayburn and Mr. Johnson are going the old way. They are sending a "victory van," equipped with a loud speaker, across the innumerable back roads of Texas.

Moreover, they are attempting to sign up every public official of this state on a manifesto declaring support of the Democratic ticket from top to bottom.

The "victory van" carries members of the state senate, members of the Texas delegation in the U.S. House of Representatives, and visiting U.S. senators. Each such senator—and there are now eight on the list—is being assigned with scrupulous care to the place he will best "fit."

The assignment of Sen. Kennedy, (Mass) for example, is in Roman Catholic San Antonio. Sen. Long (La) is put down for East Texas—just across the line from his own state.

The Eisenhower people are raising and spending a great deal of money, and will raise and spend much more. They are having no trouble obtaining financial assistance, although funds are not coming in quite at the rate of 1952.

A FAIR TILL

The Democrats, for their part, complain that they are having money difficulties. Still, they are plainly not so badly off as four years ago.

Shivers, who led the Texas bolt—and indeed the general southern bolt—of 1952 is field marshal in absentia for the Eisenhower campaign. He is at the moment in Alaska hunting kodiak bear. He will return to take a strong and open part if and when it seems that this would be a wise thing for Eisenhower. Affairs meantime are in the hands of Mr. Hart.

The Times survey has produced these findings, all subject to change in a situation that has yet to solidify.

1. A probable decline in the big urban majorities of 1952, which were responsible for an Eisenhower margin by 133,000 in a total vote of 2,075,000.

2. A relative rise in Democratic rural and small town strength.

3. Some continued support for the President in otherwise staunchly Democratic areas.

300,000 NEGRO VOTES?

4. An essentially unreadable movement among the states' Negroes, who may cast up to 300,000 votes. The best information obtainable indicates some switches to the Eisenhower ticket among Negro leaders, but continued mass Democratic voting among the Negro rank file.

5. The probable maintenance of heavy Democratic majorities among the Latin-Americans, who comprise about one-fifth of the state's population of 8,000,000.

6. A confused view of the civil rights controversy with losses to both sides that might well more or less cancel out.

Mrs. Leo Hairston, a book store proprietor in East Texas, comments: "I've been a Democrat all my life but I'm not this year. I just don't think Stevenson is for the South at all. Eisenhower isn't satisfactory either but he seems to be the lesser of two evils."

RIDING THE RANGE
Sen. Johnson

Robert Murphy of Nicodoches County—in the most "southern" part of the state—puts it this way:

"The biggest issue in these parts is segregation. Stevenson has lost ground on that count because people know better now how he stands. They know Ike is also for school integration but think he won't do much about it."

In Houston, a university graduate student, a Negro, says he and his wife are switching to Eisenhower. "I thought there was something of the Roosevelt tradition in Stevenson," says this man, "but if he can say that he needs Herman Talmadge (a pro-segregationist senatorial candidate in Georgia) then I have no use or need for him."

On the other side, many Texans speak scornfully of the President's running mate, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, because of his disclosure that he has held honorary membership in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

DROUGHT TERROR

The farm issue here is not what it is in the Midwest. It is not so much a discontent with the Eisenhower administration over farm subsidies as a kind of terror at the great drought and a general feeling against the "ins" in Washington. The administration has recognized this by sending in more drought aid within the last few days.

Men on the farms and ranches are disenchanted. They do not blame the President for the lack of rain but they complain that he could have done more to assist them.

There is often a wry Texan humor intermixed even in this: "I wish these clouds would cut loose: I want to get my shoes full of mud."

Another is to the effect: "If some candidate could make it rain, he'd sew up the country." Too, some rural Eisenhower Democrats decline to be shaken.

A chicken farmer near Dallas remarks: "You know, I like old man Ike mighty well. I'm a Democrat; but I don't think he's done us any harm. He is trying to do some thing for the farmers."

But farm sentiment seems more nearly summed up by a farmer sitting in front of the Anderson County courthouse in Palestine: "I voted for Ike in '52 but he promised us 90 per cent parity (a price support formula) and we didn't get it. He let Mr. Benson (secretary of agriculture) dictate to him. I just feel like I made a mistake."

Fulton Is Urged
To Give $45,203

By RICHARD ASHWORTH
Metropolitan Atlanta's Civil Defense organization needs an operating budget next year of $156,249.50 if it is to do more than "just keep the office open," director Elliott R. Jackson told Fulton County officials Monday. Jackson made the statement in presenting the County Budget Commission with a request for $45,203 as Fulton's part of the budget for the organization. The county appropriated $15,542.50 for civil defense in 1956.

The remainder of the 1957 funds would be requested in this manner: Atlanta, $97,292.50; DeKalb County, $10,315.50, and Cobb County, $3,433.50. Total civil defense budget here was $46,492 in 1955 and $38,203 in 1954.

NEW ITEMS ASKED
"We got such a severe budget cut last year," said Jackson, "that we're just able to keep the office open."

Among the new items requested were three additional personnel, $50,000 in equipment, additional funds to publish a newsletter and other funds for public education.

"We don't have the staff people and we are not getting the job done. Our staff just doesn't have time to do it. We need at least 25 people to do a reasonable, even a minimum job," Jackson declared.

EXPLAINS REQUEST
"I'm working 16 to 18 hours a day trying to keep up—but we're just keeping the office open," the director said.

In explaining some of the items in his budget, Jackson said: "Every year I put these things in the budget because I think we need them and they are cut out. All I can do is to put it back in the budget and ask for it again if I am going to do a good job."

Jackson said the civil defense organization also needs "an advisory committee of citizens," representing the governments included in the organization, to help draw up a yearly budget and handle other matters.

"Atlanta has one but as far as I know they have never met," he said.

Bell To Take Office Early
As Solicitor

Richard Bell, who won nomination for Stone Mountain Judicial Circuit solicitor general's post Sept. 12, will take office early.

He was appointed by Gov. Griffin Monday to fill the unexpired term of the late Roy C. Leathers.

Bell resigned as solicitor of the City Court of Decatur to accept the governor's appointment. He will assume his first duties in the Stone Mountain Circuit with a special two-week term of the court set for Oct. 29 in DeKalb County.

The City Court of Decatur will be abolished Jan. 1, 1957 under a judicial reform bill passed by the last Legislature. Judge H. C. Hubert Jr. was nominated by the September primary as the third judge of the circuit, and Bell will take over the four-year term as solicitor Jan. 1.

The assistant solicitor's post will be approved by Superior Court Judges Frank Guess and Clarence L. Vaughn after nominations by Bell.

Gov. Griffin did not indicate Monday who he would name to the solicitor's post for the City Court.

GIs Can Claim Homestead Aid

A serviceman can claim homestead exemption on property he has rented during his tour in the armed forces, Atty. Gen. Cook ruled Monday.

The unofficial ruling was made at the request of Bobby G. Windom of the Bureau of Naval Personnel in Washington.

Cook based his decision on a Georgia law that states a serviceman away from home on duty need not live in the house to claim homestead exemption.

Governor Supports Rep. Davis and Scores Thrower

Gov. Griffin added his weight Monday to Democratic efforts to reelect Rep. James C. Davis.

The governor seconded the incumbent's jibe at Republican candidate Randolph Thrower for being a "hand-picked" nominee.

"We had a free and open Democratic primary," Griffin declared. Thrower, on the other hand, was picked by the Republican State Central Committee, he continued. Asked whether he would campaign for Davis, Griffin replied,

"I am not a sunny Democrat and I am not a some-time Democrat. I am going to give the national and state tickets all the support I can."

Meanwhile Monday, Thrower's campaign manager, Frank Swift, revealed that Fannin County Republicans have been asked to help Thrower. Fannin is one of the few Republican strongholds in the state.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Fewer Children Coming Into World With Defects

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

Many of the defects with which children come into the world have nothing to do with heredity. Such congenital abnormalities include certain types of mental retardation, blindness, deafness, heart disease, epilepsy, cerebral palsy, hydrocephalus (water on the brain), and mongolism. They are not handed down from generation to generation through the germ cells but are acquired while the baby is being formed.

The defects often can be traced to a specific illness or period of stress during pregnancy. After conception, the ovum divides into millions of cells, which gather together to grow into different organs. In this respect, the fetus follows an orderly schedule.

Most of this growth takes place during the early weeks of pregnancy so that the baby is almost developed by the end of the third month. Thereafter, he increases in size until ready for birth.

The lenses of the eyes begin to develop during the fifth week, the lips during the sixth week, embryonic hands during the eighth week, and the ears during the ninth week.

If something happens to the mother during these developing periods, the structures being formed at that time may suffer the consequences.

This explains why a woman who goes through a bout of German measles in the fifth week of pregnancy may give birth to a child with congenital cataract. If the infection occurred in the sixth week of gestation, the baby might be born deaf.

In this respect, the timing of the maternal stress experienced during early pregnancy determines the type of abnormality. The ability to take stress is influenced by the mother's health, which may be at a low ebb because of diabetes or a disorder of the kidneys, heart, or glandular system.

All these factors will receive more attention in the future in an over-all effort to reduce the incidence of developmental defects. We will not go to the extreme of putting all pregnant women on a country estate to lull around like millionaires, nor in a germ-free atmosphere to minimize infection. But midwifery's health will be stressed and extreme care will be exercised from the day she learns she is pregnant until she brings her baby home from the hospital.

Developmental defects no longer are regarded as mysterious acts of God. Hereafter the quality of our offspring will be improved without employing the kind of eugenics the animal breeder practices.

Heredity still will play a role in determining the facial appearance, size, hair color, and family constitution, but we will have fewer youngsters coming into the world with congenital handicaps.

Mother of 5 Needs Time for Bible Study

QUESTION: How can a mother with five little children and all of the housework to do possibly find time for Bible study and prayer? You preachers do not understand such problems.

A. L. K. ANSWER: No, I know that not only do we preachers find it hard to understand the problems of mothers and housewives, in fact, few men can fully understand these problems.

But this I do know: God understands all of your problems and He loves you and sympathizes with you. Let me suggest a few things which may help: God has given you a precious responsibility for those five children. You have neither the strength nor the wisdom to raise them as they should be raised. God alone can give these things to you. For that reason you must make the Bible and prayer a part of your daily life. While you may not have time for long periods of Bible study you can read a few verses when you start the day and also pray, asking God to bless you throughout the day and give you the strength you need. I am very sure that if you take time to talk to Him and to read His word you will find that things will go much smoother the rest of the day. This time is not wasted but actually fits you for your work and helps you to meet your many problems. It has been truly said that if we are too busy to read the Bible and pray we are busier than God wants us to be. I know mothers who have their Bible and Bible verses propped up where they can read them as they iron or do other tasks. Let me urge you to consider that your children need the things you can get in no other way than by living close to God. Talk to Him, ask Him to be with you and to speak to you through the Bible. Adlai Pledges World Pact To End H-Test Dangers tion that such a course would provide a threat to the national security.

Cites Deadly Strontium-90 As Peril to All Human Beings

"There is little danger to national security involved," he said, "because if another power conducts further tests we would know it and, as I have said, would have no choice but to resume such tests ourselves."

Stevenson declared that the United States, together with the rest of the world, is engaged "in an arms race which threatens mankind with stark, merciless, bleak catastrophe."

URGENT NECESSITY

"In this nuclear age," he said, "peace is no longer merely a visionary ideal, it has become an urgent and practical necessity."

However, he said the nations of the world may not abandon "armed deterrents to war" until secure and effective guarantees of peace are obtained.

"Until there is worldwide agreement on an effective system of balanced armed reductions with adequate safeguards," he said, "we must maintain our national defense and the defense of the free world."

Stevenson made plain his opposition to any kind of "unilateral disarmament." However, he said that he felt "we should not put too many of our eggs in the atomic and hydrogen basket."

"Effective disarmament," he said, "means universal disarmament—an open world, with no secret armies, no secret weapons, and in effect, no military secrets."

However, he said that the world was now deadlocked over the method of obtaining a disarmament system with effective safeguards of inspection.

"If we are going to make any progress," he asserted, "we must find means of breaking out of this deadly deadlock. We must come forward with proposals which will bear witness to our desire to move toward and not away from disarmament."

Stevenson said it was this objective which he had in mind when he presented his suggestion for the suspension of H-bomb tests.

Stevenson said he deliberately offered his proposal, "as far removed as possible from the political arena," in an address before the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

NOT CRITICISM

"It was made without criticism of the present administration's policy for H-bomb development," he said. "Others—and not I—have chosen to make this proposal for peace a political issue. But I think this is good. After all, the issue is mankind's survival, and man should debate it, fully, openly and in democracy's established processes."

Stevenson said that while he had met only negative criticism from the Republican side, he felt he must return to the subject.

"There is an insistent necessity for the world to stop at least the testing of these terrifying weapons," he said.

Stevenson said the H-bomb was already so powerful that one bomb could destroy the largest city in the world. He said explosion of an H-bomb anywhere in the world can quickly be detected—and quoted Mr. Eisenhower in support of his statement.

MAY DAMAGE RACE

But H-bomb tests, themselves, he said, "may cause the human race unmeasured damage."

Stevenson said the H-bomb tests placed into the atmosphere "huge quantities of radioactive material," which contains "strontium-90, which is the most dreadful poison in the world."

"Only a tablespoonful shared equally by all members of the human race would produce a dangerous level of radioactivity in the bones of every individual," Stevenson said.

Stevenson said he did not wish to be an alarmist but he pointed out that the dangers from strontium-90 cannot be precisely calculated even by scientists.

Los Angeles Added to Ike Speech Tour

"How employment, wages and income have reached the highest levels in history."

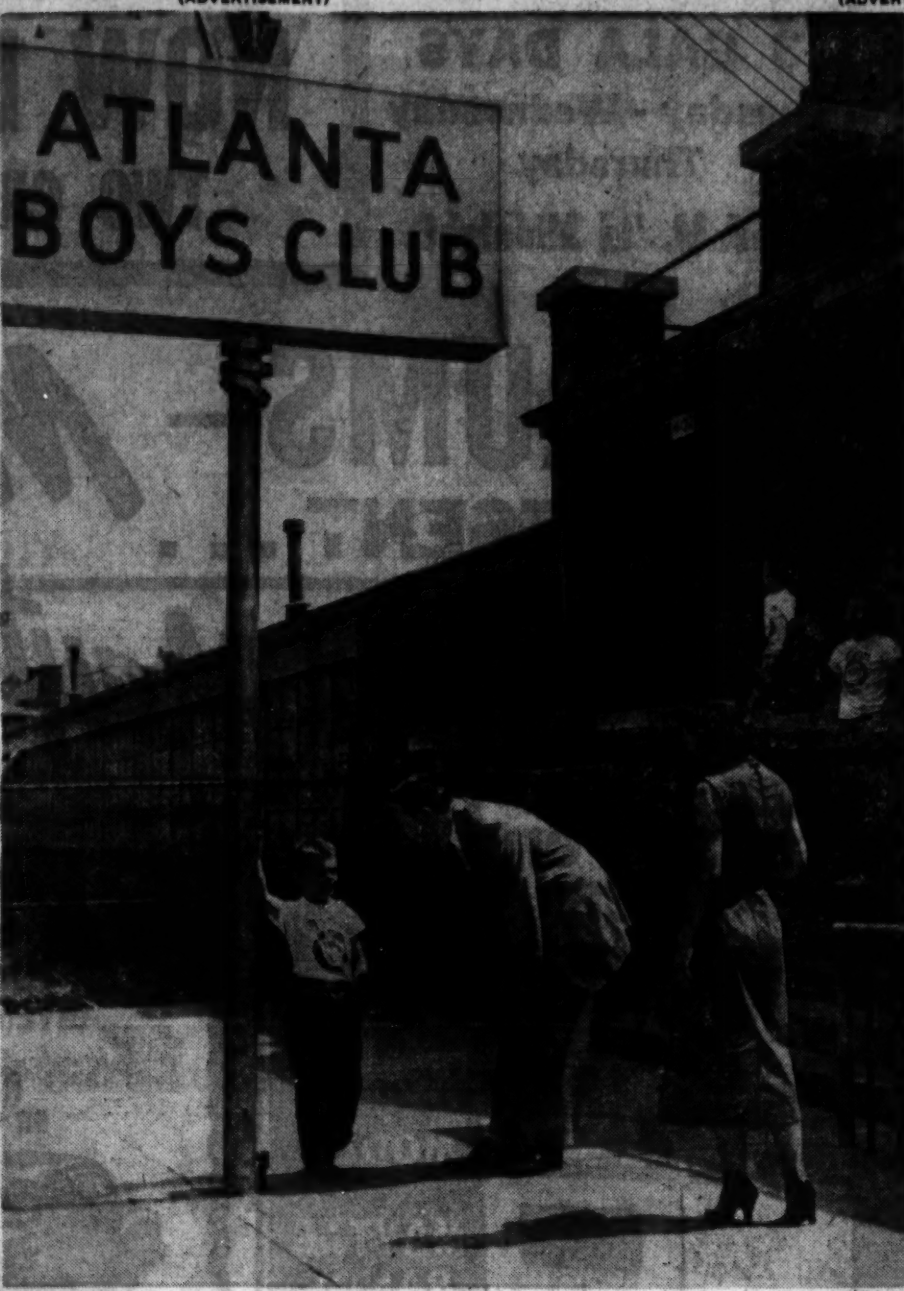

Eisenhower also said "You will hear your attorney general, the secretary of our new Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and other Cabinet officers tell what we have done to combat monopoly, to extend Social Security for 70 million Americans, and other accomplishments of this Republican administration."

"I am proud of the record. . . I for one—and all who work with me—will be happy to rest our case on your honest judgment."

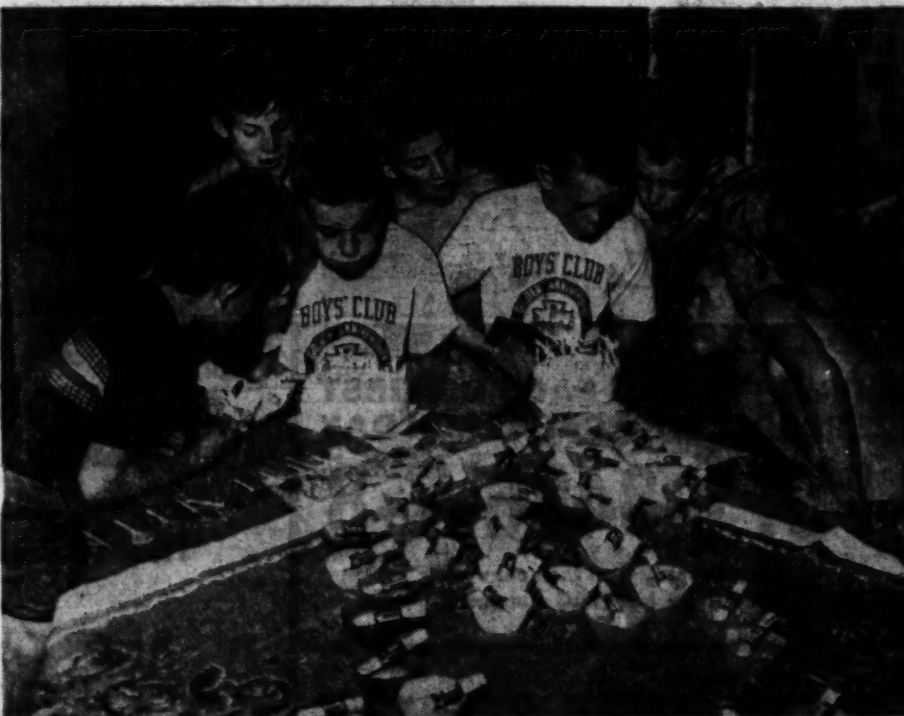

Eisenhower will be off tomorrow on his most extensive effort of the campaign—five days of travel and speechmaking in Minnesota, Washington, Oregon, California and Colorado. Mrs. Eisenhower will be with him.

Eisenhower will make midday talks in St. Paul and Minneapolis tomorrow, then fly on to the Pacific Northwest where he wants to lend a hand to Gov. Arthur B. Langlie of Washington and Douglas McKay of Oregon in their campaigns for election to the Senate.

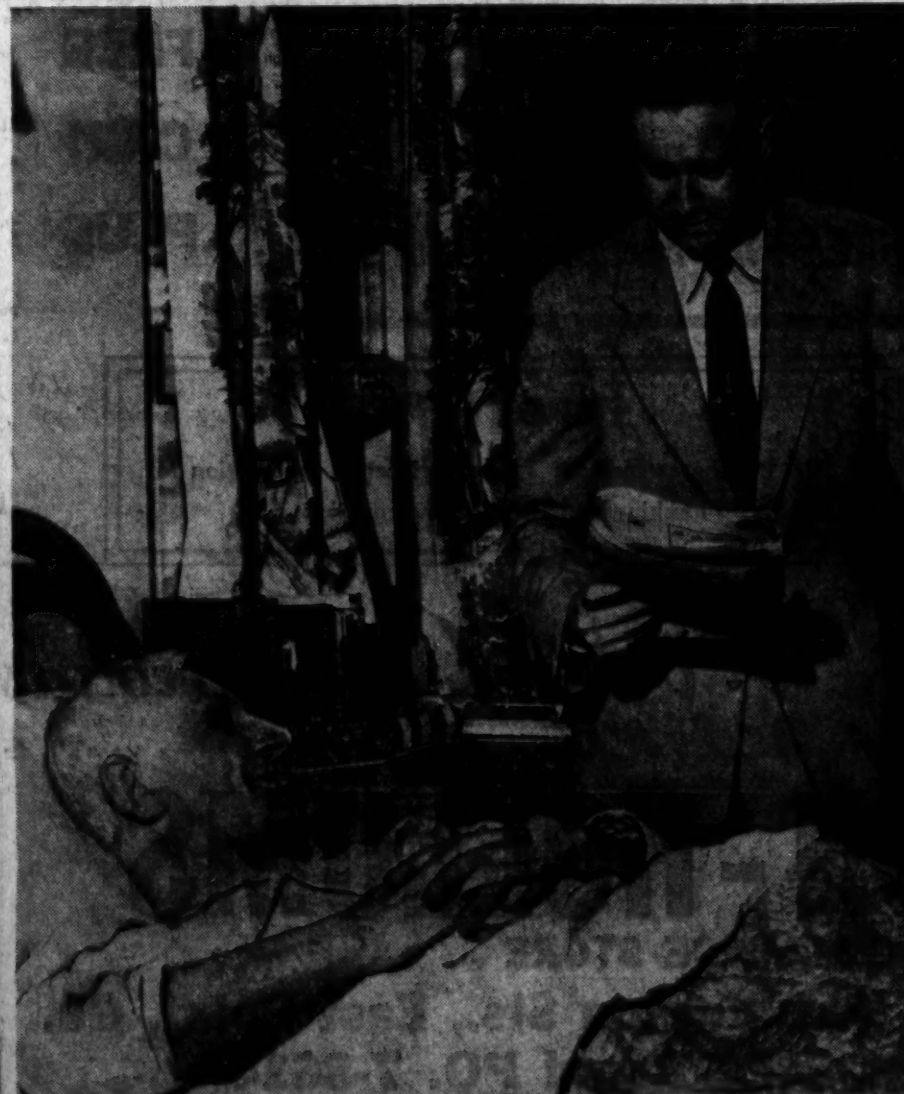

Eisenhower will speak in Seattle's Civic Auditorium Wednesday night. He will make a talk at Puget Sound College Thursday and that night will speak over a national television network (ABC) from Portland.

Tax Relief Asked For Home-Owners

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Tax and zoning proposals highlighted a meeting of the aldermanic board Monday.

A series of measures designed to shift taxes so as to relieve the homeowner and "more equitably distribute the tax burden" was referred for the joint consideration of the finance and ordinance and legislation committees.

Ralph Huie, finance committee chairman, said hearings will be held before recommendations are made.

REZONING PROPOSAL

Aldermen also sent to the joint Atlanta-Fulton County Planning Board a proposal to rezone for business use a 70-acre tract at Peachtree and Lenox roads, NE, for erection of a $15,000,000 shopping center.

Another ordinance to permit cemeteries to erect mortuaries and/or mausoleums on cemetery property was sent to the aldermanic board's zoning committee for study.

The latter proposal is intended to permit Greenwood Cemetery to build a $250,000 combination mausoleum and mortuary on its property on Cascade road, SW.

KILLED BY COURT

The Georgia Supreme Court last week invalidated special permits issued by the city for both projects. The new effort is to comply with the court ruling and to authorize the improvements.

Tax proposals sent to the two committees for study include:

1. Authority to levy all types and kinds of taxes levied by the state. Aldermen Charlie Leftwich and Jesse Draper are sponsors. The proposal asks that all state municipalities be given the same powers.

EXEMPTION BOOST

2. Increase of the present $2,000 homestead exemption allowed for owner-occupied homes to $4,000, and levy of an income tax on wages and earnings originating inside Atlanta. Ald. James E. Jackson, author of the proposal, suggests a limit of 1 per cent be placed on the levy.

3. State kickback to Georgia cities of portions of state collections, especially income, sales and collections other than ad valorem taxes. Aldermen Milton Farris and L. O. Moseley were authors of that proposal.

ABOLISH TAX

4. Request by Huie that a 3½-mill tax Atlantans now pay Fulton County be abolished or reassigned. At present, Atlantans pay a 1½-mill school tax and cannot send their children to county schools, Huie said.

He added that another 2-mill Fulton County tax for public works bars use of the money inside Atlanta. Huie wants the levies abolished. Failing that, he wants Fulton County to be permitted to expend "a fair portion" of the 2-mill public works levy inside the city.

5. A demand by Ald. John A. White to reduce ad valorem taxes by the amount raised by other levies.

RUNWAY APPROACH

Aldermen also:

1. Approved an $800,000 runway approach program for the Atlanta airport with the city and Civil Aeronautics Administration sharing the cost equally.

2. Sent the finance committee a request from Mrs. Harry Dunston, president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, that the report of Dr. Alfred Buehler, governmental expert, be made available as soon as possible. Buehler and his associates are winding up a lengthy study of long-range city needs and means to finance them.

3. Accepted the bid of Maynard Johnston & Co. for construction of fire station No. 31 on Fairburn road, near Campbellton road. The company filed the low bid, asking $55,236 for construction. The improvement will cost an estimated $80,000, including equipment.

Clayton County Votes Today on $1,326,000 Bonds

Clayton County voters Tuesday will go to the polls to vote on a $1,326,000 school and sewerage bond issue. Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

If approved, $350,000 of the bond money would be used to build a sewage treatment plant on the Flint River below Jonesboro with a main sewerage line running up to Mountain View. County officials said such a system would open up 3,000 acres of land along College Park road for industrial development.

The school bonds, amounting to $376,000, would be used to construct a new school at Forest Park and to purchase land for two other proposed school buildings in Clayton County.

She Aids Rural School Systems

By ELIZABETH MORGAN
Your child may get better schooling soon.

One thousand school superintendents who want to improve their schools have come to Atlanta from all over the nation. They arrived Sunday for the 11th national conference of county and rural area superintendents—their first held in Atlanta and second in the South.

The superintendents belong to a division of the National Education Assn. (NEA). The association includes personnel connected with the field of education—teachers, administrators, counselors—who pool their experience, ideas and materials to help themselves and their school communities.

Miss Lois Clark, assistant director of rural service for NEA, has come down from Washington to help direct the conference. She travels around the country offering advice and setting up consultations for school personnel who ask for help. Many rural superintendents are trying to consolidate their schools so that more children can benefit from a larger collection of teachers, money and materials.

Miss Clark, in explaining her department's purpose, takes the South as an example of the need for rural reorganization. "The needs of the South are different from the rest of the country. I think of its states in terms of county units where there is just one superintendent for the whole county. Sometimes, for children to get more benefit from school, two or three small counties get together and support one school."

closely with state and local educational groups."

The Rural Service Division believes that a school should be integrated with its community. Its workers have found that the best solution does not always depend on economics. Sometimes a large school would be cheaper to run than several small ones. But it would cover such a wide, diversified area that people in the towns involved wouldn't take much interest in school activities.

INTERMEDIATE UNIT
So the group has developed the concept of the intermediate unit, a program now in operation in 30 states. Local people, with the consultation of the rural division, work out the system that is best for them—it may mean one school for several counties, or consolidating several three-teacher schools within a county, or maintaining a three-teacher school.

Sometimes a smaller school is more desirable in terms of the community, even though the children may not get as much instructional benefit from the arrangement.

Tour of City, Supper Honor Student Nurses

By BETTY CARROLLTON
The pretty blonde glanced back over her shoulder at the stately Atlanta home. "Atlanta is the personification of the Old and New South," she declared.

Sally Robinson of Jacksonville, Fla., summed up her tour of the Dogwood City with that observation.

Sally was one of nearly 50 members of the nurses training class at Grady Hospital who were treated to a tour of Atlanta by the entertainment and instruction committee of the Red Cross, of which Mrs. W. C. Wardlaw Sr. is chairman.

CHARTERED BUS
The girls, from various sections of Georgia as well as nearby states, toured Atlanta by chartered bus, stopping to see numerous points of interest.

For most of the girls, highlights of the tour were the visit to the High Museum and views of Atlanta's residential section.

The day's outing was climaxed with an alfresco supper at "The Shack," lovely country home of Mrs. Wardlaw, where the girls enjoyed boat rides on the lake and a "truly delicious" meal. Each were presented with a pair of nylon, candy fruit.

NEW STUDENTS
Members of the tour, all new students at the Grady Nurses' Training School, include: Mildred Adams, Elberton; Polly Lee Allen, Cashiers, N.C.; Jo Ann Baker, Quitman; Mary Ann Bassett, LaGrange; Shirley Barrett and Sally Robinson, Jacksonville, Fla.; Sarah Joyce Belcher, LaFayette, Ala.; Mary Louise Bose, Tampa; Martha Sue Bourquin, Barney.

Mary Jacqueline Brown, Tifton; June Crawford, Murphy, N.C.; Mamie Creel, Graceville, Fla.; Martha Dewberry, Gulf-breeze, Fla.; Clara Dixon, Sparks; Frances Dodins, Seneca, S.C.; Shirley Dowling and Jo Ann Strickland, Waycross; Diane Fesmire, Kathleen; Lela Mae Giles and Frances Greer, Norcross; Sherry Gibbs, Atmore, Ala.; Glenda Gore, Aragon; Margaret Harkins, Perry.

Sadie Hancock, Decatur; Edna Hall, Pell City, Ala.; Lucy Harrison, Rome; Betty Hudson, Lantana, Ala.; Barbara Johnston and Sara Rountree, Evergreen, Ala.; Mary Nolan, Arabi; Antoinette Magers, Albany; Joyce Ouzts, Sandra Prince and Patsy Shaw, Cairo; Carole Raines, Perry; Ruth Patterson, Hapeville; Margaret Tatum, Clarksville; Betty Jean Thomas, Cedartown; Shirley Aline Williams and Martha Ann Worsham, Orlando, Fla.

ATLANTANS
Atlantans in the group included Gladys Thames, Mary Menler, Patricia Hicks, Barbara Imogene Hardy, Carol Greene, Jill Gardner and Janis Earing.

Of her first trip to Atlanta, Sally Robinson said she was also especially impressed with the city's entertainment facilities, the clubs, theaters, parks and recreational areas.

"I can hardly wait for opera season," she exclaimed. "And I'm really looking forward to the concerts and ballet performances."

Sandra Prince said that although she was "pretty familiar" with downtown Atlanta, she had not visited the museum or seen the "beautiful homes."

Sandra's mother, Mrs. M. O. Prince, is a graduate of the Grady Nurses' Training School and is now a public health nurse in Grady County. Sandra's decision to become a nurse was influenced by her mother's memories and experiences.

"TO HELP OTHERS"
Polly Allen decided to become a nurse during her freshman year in high school, spurred by a desire "to help others." Atlanta and Grady were recommended by her family doctor

Tobe Says

Wear Satin Shirt With Tailored Suits

Women are constantly asking me — "What shall we wear with our suits?" My answer is—"There are three smart things—a satin shirt, a chiffon blouse, a silk sweater," and a really smart woman could easily have all three in her wardrobe at once.

A satin shirt should not be too strictly tailored. The fabric itself is dressy so you can wear it for more formal occasions than a cotton or even a silk shirt. I like satin shirts with an open rolling collar like those on Italian shirts, with three quarter length sleeves.

doctor. "But I knew it would be a hard field for a girl, so I'll be a nurse instead," she said. Ruth is sure she'll regret her decision.

"It's just like one big family here at Grady," she said. "And the send-off they gave us, the tour and supper, really helped to make everyone feel comfortable, and welcome."

Celestine Sibley Overdose of Mountain Air

Somebody hand me the liniment and the heating pad. And don't go out of the sound of my weak and querulous voice. I may need you to get me a wheelchair. I've just had a restful week-end in the mountains!

I don't know how many muscles and bones a body contains, but roughly 3,000 have set up a shrill clamor in my aging frame. I totter when I walk, I have to think about it a while before I can figure out how to sit down, and if I once get down it's tortuous to rise again.

Blame it on autumn. Blame it on the mountains and the air that is so light and fresh and fragrant you breathe it in and get a little drunk. Blame it on carnival-colored hillsides and moonlight nights. Blame it on a rock pile.

On second thought, there's no use blaming those rocks. We hauled them and friends hauled them to our little cabin when we were in the midst of chimney-building. The left-over ones that were of unsuitable size and shape must have totaled three or four truck loads, but they didn't bother anybody. They have been scattered around the grounds for a couple of years now, just tying there, doing nobody harm, although Muv suspected they harbored snakes and I barked my shins on them occasionally on my way to the woodpile.

The idea, if we had one at all about those rocks, was that someday we could get a strong man with a truck to come and haul them away. Then the other morning I finished washing the dishes, hung the dish towels out in the breeze, filled the water bucket and stood a moment watching the sun set the tops of the sourwood trees a-blaze on the hillside.

My son who had been raking around the doorway in preparation for company remarked that it would be nice if the rocks were moved.

"Let's move 'em," I said. "Let's build a stone wall."

The deceptive thing about that mountain air is that you feel invincible. You lean over, grasp one rock, stand up, walk 10 paces and put it down and you feel light and graceful and strong as . . . well, a man with a truck. By the time our visitors arrived we had moved two or three hundred rocks. The pile beside the cabin had dwindled to gravel and immovable boulders and we had a beautiful little stone wall curving along the roadside, looking as much a part of the landscape as the sumach and the sourwood.

Company came and we went for a walk, up the old woods road toward the top of the mountain, stopping occasionally to watch the setting sun on the tree tops or stooping to pick up a hickory nut or a particularly fine glossy acorn. Once we found a muscadine vine and stopped to shake it and pick up the purple grapes. We sat a moment on a rock beside a waterfall to rest for the trip back down.

It was, I think, the only sitting we did, excusing a little time after supper when we passed around the fireplace to take down the little paper-back volume of poetry and squabble over such favorites as Shelley and Swinburne and Thomas Hardy. A nice literary discussion by firelight and candlelight would have been a fitting end to a day of climbing, stooping and lifting. I could even stand to lose an argument over Housman or get left out in the race to recite "The Rime of the Ancient Mariner." (After all, a hostess isn't supposed to out-do her guests in such intellectual exercises.)

But that wasn't enough for my guests. They happened to take a look out the door and saw the moonlight. And the moonlight itself does such strange things to you. You think you can walk and walk. You want to see around the next curve in the road, the next little waterfall in the creek, what the world looks like from the next hillside.

It took me two miles to persuade them in and to bed. And by that time I was chattering with cold and my jacket felt heavy on my aching shoulders. Today . . . well, I can think of worse ills than an overdose of mountain air. But I can't think of more painful ones.

Teen-Age Mail

Why Is Sex So Wrong? God Made Us This Way

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I am a teen-age girl, going with a teen-age boy. We like each other very much and even think we could be in love. We have been going together for over two years and never quarrel except over petting. He doesn't think it is wrong to pet and sometimes wants me to go even farther. I don't know whether he's right or wrong.

If what he is asking is so wrong, why did God make us this way? We're only human and sometimes it's awfully hard to say no. Please help me if you can. Your advice will be very much appreciated. We both need it so we'll know what's right and what's wrong.

I have many personal contacts with teen-agers and receive many letters from them each day, so I am sympathetic and well aware of the heavy pressures they are subjected to as a group.

I am answering your particular letter, not because it contains a new situation but because of the important question you asked, "If it is so wrong why did God make us this way?"

It's true that God did make us with the desire and ability to reproduce our own kind. But that ability was not meant to be misused. It was meant to be used to create fine children and happy families through marriage. It is well to remember that God also created our hands so we can use them skillfully to work, clothe and feed ourselves. But, unfortunately, those same hands also can pull the trigger of a gun to kill a neighbor in a fit of anger.

What I am trying to point out is the fact that we should not misuse any of the abilities which God has given us. In some primitive tribes your boy friend's attitude might be considered all right, but you are living in a civilized country where promiscuous, uncontrolled morals are damaging to individuals and to society.

You say, "We're only human and sometimes it's awfully hard to say no." As true as that may be, if we were to allow the fact that "we're only human" to become an alibi for giving in to all of our weaknesses most anything we wanted to do, lie, steal, kill or disregard moral standards could be dismissed with, "I had the urge to do it and I am only human, after all."

You already know what is right and wrong. I can only hope you are intelligent enough to make use of that knowledge.

Miss Godfrey To Marry

DONALSONVILLE, Oct. 15 — Mrs. Mabel F. Godfrey announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Reta Godfrey, to John H. Dick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Dick of Iron City. The marriage will be solemnized on Sunday, Nov. 11, at the First Baptist Church here. Miss Godfrey was graduated from Seminole County High School and the Dothan Business College. She is employed by the Seminole County Department of Public Welfare. Mr. Dick is also a graduate of Seminole County High School. He served in the U.S. Air Force, and is now engaged in farming at Iron City.

IF YOU COULD ask Sir Walter...

If you walked on your clothes, you'd have them cleaned even more often, wouldn't you? Sir Walter Raleigh, who spread his cloak in the mud for Queen Elizabeth to walk on, could tell you for sure. Ever thought about those expensive wall-to-wall carpets in your home? They're walked on constantly... grit is ground into the fabric... the luster of the nap is dulled. Using the Bigelow Karpet-Kare method, Sharon, Inc., does better by carpets than a Sixteenth Century cleaner did by Sir Walter's trampled-on cloak... lengthens their lifetime of service. Call Sharon at CRescent 6488 for Karpet-Kare in-the-home cleaning.

YOUR STARS TODAY

Daily Guide — A day for individuality expressed in a cooperative, diplomatic way. Add your own ideas to the current discussion. Be progressive and initiative.

This is an excellent day to put over new ideas, to try out some original addition to an established and solid method, or to play a hunch based on good judgment and experience.

Those born in Libra or Leo have a chance to be witty, keen and original, especially those born around the end of September or end of July. Relationships can still be somewhat strained and remain so through tomorrow when emotions can be explosive.

Happy Birthday, Libra! Health matters may need wise handling now. Be sure that you do not attempt too much in the way of work, or become too emotionally involved.

New cycles are beginning for you so clear up all old matters and plan for new beginnings. Mental discipline and a practical outlook will be necessary.

Miss Stewart Is Bride of Mr. Donahoo

CARTERSVILLE, Oct. 15—Miss Anne Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Stewart, was married to Clarence S. Donahoo Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Donahoo Sr. of Cartersville at an evening ceremony solemnized at the Tabernacle Baptist Church.

The Rev. A. R. Haman officiated, and Miss Stewart was given in marriage by her father.

She was attended by the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Watson Coffey, as matron of honor, and Miss Iva Elder of Chattahoochee as maid of honor. Her bridesmaids included her sister, Peggy, Mrs. R. E. Wilder of Atlanta, Mrs. Sammy Hughes of Adairsville and Miss Sue Wheeler.

The bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace fashioned with a chapel-length train. She carried a prayer book showered with white orchids.

George Tinsley of Atlanta was best man for Mr. Donahoo, and his groomsmen were John Cochran Jr., John Hodge, Robert Mines, Billy Quinn of Chickamauga and W. G. Reeves Jr. of Dublin.

After a wedding trip to Miami, Nassau and Havana, the couple will live in Cartersville.

"My marriage is happier now than when I was a bride!"

says Mrs. C. L. Kellogg who now uses ZONITE to douche

SAFER Women usually wonder about douching for feminine hygiene. Mrs. Kellogg did, until she learned how important the proper method of douching with a fountain syringe is, using an effective yet safe solution—like ZONITE.

EFFECTIVE! No other type liquid antiseptic-germicide for the douche of all those tested is so powerfully effective yet so safe to body tissues as ZONITE.

HEALTHFUL! ZONITE completely deodorizes, promptly washes away germs and odor-causing waste substances. A nurse once advised Mrs. Kellogg that if any abnormal condition exists, she should see her doctor, who would probably recommend that she continue to use ZONITE.

GAINIT! You, too, can have the "peace of mind" and daintiness that ZONITE gives you after monthly periods and other times. Use ZONITE as directed, as often as needed, without risk of injury. Costs pennies per douche.

so safe yet so effective!

Can You Tighe That?

For what it's worth: What's this? Ted Williams makes the major league all-star outfield playing part-time (and defense by moods). Stan Musial can't make it leading the National League in RBI. Can't spit far enough, I guess. . . . That (Sport) magazine that gives a sport car to the star of the World Series didn't wait for Yogi Berra to have his big fling the last day. It went straight to Don Larsen after his perfect, perfect game. . . . And whatever became of Bob Kuzava?

If Milwaukee had a hand in picking a manager for the Crackers, the Braves brass would think kindly of Ben Geraghty, who has won three pennants in five years at Jacksonville. . . . Any day now, Detroit will announce that Jack Tighe is the new Tiger manager. But The Sporting News already has jumped the gun and done it, meaning that Billy Hitchcock can stay if he wants to. He and Tighe are closest of friends. But then there's the Birmingham job. . . . This was a season of vindication for George McQuinn. He followed up his Atlanta misery with a sterling performance in the Pioneer League, where he pulled Boise out of the second division into a pennant. Next stop: Corpus Christi, more than likely. Babe Pinelli's retirement day is one he can tell the kids about. Last time he worked balls and strikes was Larsen's perfect day. . . . Rocky Marciano's magazine contributions make it pretty obvious now why he retired—Al Weill. . . . Jim Tatum may have started a new coaching fad at North Carolina, where he has taken on assistant Jack Hennessey for room and board. Jack is a sound sleeper but not a heavy eater. Should he be a bargain.

Red Leatherbury's War Eagle, the Mobile colt named for obvious reason, is now an 80-to-1 shot in the Garden State. The date is Oct. 27 for the world's richest race. . . . Frank Leahy moaned so eloquently when he was at Notre Dame that nobody paid any attention to Terry Brennan's blues this year. Not even Mrs. Brennan. . . . How to finish in the second division: Have two 20-game winners and four of the 10 leading hitters in the league working for you. Detroit did it this year. Maybe Datatron (remember) had a good idea going?

Maryland Goes for Deacon Barnes
If you ever plan to get fired, make sure it's Phil Wrigley that fires you. The Chicago Cubs owner let Wid Matthews and Jim Gallagher go with a full year's pay. . . . John Bookman, the Miami U. halfback, is a son of the equipment manager at LSU. . . . Maryland coaches, after viewing Don Bosseler of Miami and Bill Barnes of Wake Forest at close range, observe: "We'd rather play against Bosseler any day. This Barnes is an all-American."

Jimmy D'Angelo has been playing golf for at least 30 years, but only the other day did the Myrtle Beach, S.C., pro sink his first ace, a 200-yarder on his own Dunes course. . . . It was a long time between managerial jobs for Bob Scheffing, the new Cubs chief. The ex-catcher bossed a farm club for the Cards in 1939 at age 24, his career momentarily waylaid by a sore arm, and he didn't manage again until he brought Los Angeles home in the race last year. . . . Now they're saying that Phil Rizzuto won't take that Baltimore TV offer after all. It would interfere with the enterprises he's got going for him in New York.

A secret Big Ten report, says Look magazine, is warning conference schools that they are becoming "farms" for professional sports. Secret? . . . One of those little known facts: That Johnny Mauer of Florida once had Walter Alston of Brooklyn on his Miami (Ohio) basketball team. . . . Yankees have 300 hitter Tony Kubek coming up from Denver to play shortstop, which seems to indicate that Gil McDougald goes home to third and Andy Carey becomes available for trade. Or pitching lessons.

Right Town, Wrong Funeral
Country Brown must be serious about being scarce around the baseball fields next season. He's opening an insurance agency up in Summerville, probably mindful that Nashville offered him for sale for $100 last summer and found no takers. . . . Ted Murray swept out the entire front office at Nashville after the season, leaving only Bill McCarthy to remind him of some great hopes that went to seed. . . . And whatever became of Lee Q. Murray? Remember him, Col. Stoopnagle's heavyweight hope?

When a widely known baseball figure closely associated with Rogers Hornsby at one time heard that Rajah is conducting baseball clinics for youngsters in Chicago, he said: "I thought they were against juvenile delinquency, not trying to develop it." . . . In Columbia, S.C., where Warren Giese is the new king of football, he is known as the Glee-zay that laid the golden egg. The Clemson-South Carolina series is now set up as it hasn't been in so many big Thursdays. . . . When Carnegie Tech needed backfield help, it went to the Ice Capades. That's where fullback Jesse Quaise spent the summer, skating in the touring refrigerator.

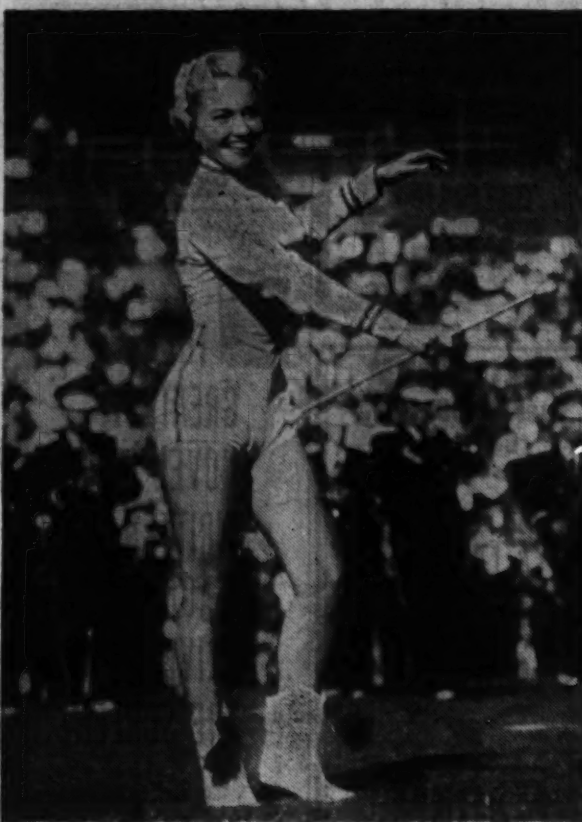

Rory Calhoun broke a losing streak of one straight in his John Sullivan fight, but he showed no particular progress doing it. His footwork is still graceless and he still gets hit too often. . . . The Paist people were about to jerk their TV sponsorship of the Wednesday fights until a survey showed them how popular the bloody game is with men and womenfolk alike. They'll stick. . . . A pitcher's wife died while Zack Taylor managed the Toledo club some years back. Zack called a meeting and advised all players to show up for the funeral, "if for nothing else, out of respect for old Joe." Zack and his coach went to the funeral together, arriving late and standing in the back. They strained for a view of a familiar face, but not a player was there. "You blankety-blank so-and-so," Zack ranted the next day. "What'd you do, take the day off and go fishing?" Countered the players: "But we were there, Zack, all of us on the front row. Where were you?" Zack and the coach had gone to the wrong funeral. . . . Selah.

Oklahoma Tops Polls; Tech Third
Oklahoma, unbeaten and unscathed on, retained its top ranking in college football Monday, but mighty Michigan State closed ground in the weekly polls conducted by the Associated and United Press.

Georgia Tech advanced from fifth to third in the UP listing, the same spot it occupied for the second straight week in the AP ratings. Sports writers cast 67 votes for Oklahoma and 45 for Michigan State in the AP roundup. Coaches, voting for the UP, favored Oklahoma for the top spot 24 to 8.

Lambert Leader
NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (UP)—Syracuse University, 27-20 winner over West Virginia, supplanted Army today as leader for the Lambert Trophy, given annually to the best college football team in the East.

BEAUTY WITH THE BATON—CHAPEL HILL, N.C., Oct. 15—Tar Heel majorette Jane Brock, Georgia's loss and North Carolina's gain, flashes fine half-time form. Jane, Miss Atlanta of 1955, is a University of North Carolina freshman and was "Miss Homecoming" last weekend at the Georgia-North Carolina football game.

Recipe for Powerful Punch: Add One Gookin to Tech FBs

Jackets Claim SEC's Top Trio

By AL THOMY
Opponents who had geared their defense machinery for a double dose of fullback trouble from Georgia Tech now find revision in order.

Dick Gookin, the No. 3 man, has joined the fullback blasting fraternity, and where there were two there are now three of 'em, and all as frisky as finely trained thoroughbreds.

Tulane has its Ronnie Quillian, Florida has its Joe Brodsky, Tennessee its Tommy Bronson, Vanderbilt its Jim Butler and there's a descendant of the fabulous Pooles who wins games for Ole Miss, one Paige Cothren by name. All are men in the finest tradition of slam-bang fullbacking.

As the Tech coaches see it, the Engineers may not have one fullback who surpasses any of these . . . but they have the three best in the Southeastern Conference.

"Some of our opponents have defended us for the outside plays," said Head Coach Bobby Dodd Monday after reviewing the LSU game movies, "and our fullbacks have responded wonderfully. They've hit that middle with an extra drive, and thus nullified some of the outside defenses."

"They're all tough, and real threats," (Ken) Owen ran the ball 15 times Saturday. He and (Dick) Mattison have averaged over 40 yards on their quick kicks. And Gookin played a fine game Saturday to give us another capable man at the position."

Among other things, Gookin perhaps the best defensive man of the trio, intercepted a pass and returned it 67 yards for the touchdown that broke the Bengals' back and put Tech ahead 20-7 at the half.

Dodd sees a full-afternoon's work for the Auburn game here Saturday.

"Auburn is potentially a good football team," he said. "They were very good against Kentucky after a bad day in the Tennessee game. We don't count the Furman game because of the caliber of opposition."

"They have an all-the-way threat in (Tommy) Lorino, a fine defensive line and an experienced quarterback in (Hal) Tubbs. On a given day, they could beat anyone in the conference."

The Techs launch Auburn preparations Tuesday afternoon after a light Monday session.

FLAT FACTS: Don Ellis, injured in the LSU game, will sit out the Auburn battle. All others are expected to be ready, though halfback George Volkert is still ailing. Ted Smith and Wesley Gibbs replace Ellis, with Paul Vickers expected to offer some aid after being out with an injury.

Big 10 Group Indicts Own Work-Aid Plan

Invites Deceit And Hypocrisy

CHICAGO, Oct. 15 (UP)—A critical self-appraisal of Western Conference athletes, charging that the work-aid program for athletes is "an invitation to hypocrisy and deceit," was released today by the Big Ten in the form of a 24-page report.

It also found financial help to athletes has reached "staggering proportions."

The strongly-worded analysis of the trends of recruiting and financial aid was drafted by a conference committee set up on Dec. 9, 1955, "to study the over-all problems and position of the conference in the conduct of intercollegiate athletics."

The report, secret until now, was sent to Big Ten presidents, athletic directors and faculty representatives.

It was mapped by Big Ten Commissioner Kenneth L. Wilson; Assistant Commissioner Bill Reed; H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, Michigan athletic director; Leslie W. Scott, Michigan State faculty representative; Verne C. Freeman, Purdue faculty representative, and Ivy

Williamson, Wisconsin athletic director.

The report criticized the "offer system." It said "there is an underlying dilemma in the administration of financial assistance to athletes in the Big Ten."

"Each conference school," the report stated, "is on a definite 'offer' basis, meaning that the recruitment activity . . . is accompanied by the tender of financial assistance (promised work and/or scholarships)."

"The scope of financial subsidies to conference athletes, earned and unearned (scholarships), has increased staggering proportions in the past decade."

HURRICANES PLAN SHAKEUP —NOBODY MOVES BOSSELER

By MORRIS McLEMORE
Miami Daily News Sports Editor

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 15.—The weissenheimers in charge of losing money for local afternoon with out of the palms late Monday afternoon with perhaps the nuttiest line of the football season.

They figure Miami is precisely a 134-point favorite over Georgia for their war in the Orange Bowl Friday night, although Andy Gustafson is not at all sure what combination he will throw at the Bulldogs' revitalized outfit.

Even while celebrations of the brokers were taking place, the Hurricanes whaled each other in a bitter scrimmage.

This was something of a shakedown and there will be another Tuesday. While Miami is not desperate... victories over South Carolina, Boston College and Maryland attest to this... the last five minutes of the Maryland battle last Friday made Gus more than uneasy.

Maryland did not reach beyond its own 46 until a Miami fumble gave the Terps control a few yards in Hurricane territory late in the fourth period. But, in those last five minutes, the Terps drove 80 yards and hit six of nine passes to score and save themselves from a proper skunking.

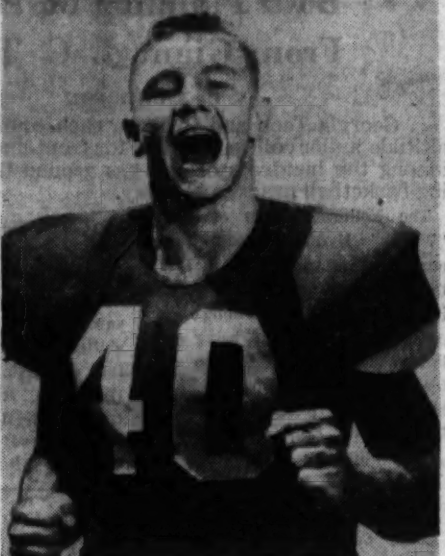

Miami's margin was comfortable enough, a 13-6 final. But its pass defense proved porous in this instance and Gustafson noted rather sourly that his first unit was the faulty one.

The second group seldom gave the bigger, more powerful Maryland line a toehold, much less real ground, and a left-handed sophomore quarterback, Bonnie Yarbrough, steered these young bucks in a touchdown sweep that became a beautifully molded assortment of sweeps, shoots and passes.

Thus, the study given to pictures of the Maryland game and those two scrimmages easily could produce a new Miami lineup for Georgia.

It is logical to assume, however, that Gustafson won't tamper with the key figures in an interesting club ranked 11th in the nation this week by the Associated Press.

The big boy, of course, is Don Bosseler, 205-pound senior fullback and captain, the bellwether of the attack and a brutal tackler. Bosseler is still growing... he won't be 21 until December

BOSSELER READY TO EAT 'EM UP
Miami Fullback Key Man in the Attack

... and is a step faster in 10 yards than he was last fall, when he ruptured the middle of Georgia Tech's line for Miami's only touchdown.

The Hurricanes will offer the Bulldogs far more variety in both offense and defense than they presented in Atlanta. A case to illustrate Miami's new philosophy occurred in the second quarter against Maryland when a pass — Sam Scarnecchia to Rebel Bookman — went to the Maryland two but was called back and Miami penalized. On the next play, Sam threw exactly the same pass to Bookman for a touchdown.

The offense still is based on the inside-belly series, with alterations, and occasional use of the double-wing. There is more daring approach to the attack, however, and astute use of passes to go with the power of Bosseler and halfback Johnny Varone.

And there's a kid sophomore, name of Claude Casey, whom the Bulldogs must hawk when he shows at left halfback. This boy is a break-away runner who hasn't broken away in outside competition but has demonstrated time and again in scrimmages that he has unusual ability.

He could get his first, real chance against Georgia Friday when some 45,000 spectators are expected to watch him try to make hash out of the point spread.

Orr Adds Skillful Runbacks To Punting, Receiving Tricks

Butts Applauds
UNC Return

By DAN KITCHENS
Special to The Constitution
ATHENS, Oct. 15.—Georgia's versatile Jimmy Orr added another laurel to his wreath against North Carolina Saturday.

Already possessor of the 1955 SEC pass-receiving crown and currently topping the conference kickers with a 41.2 average, Jimmy Monday was credited with the most perfectly executed punt return at Georgia in many a moon.

Coach Wally Butts, after studying the game movies, remarked: "It was one of the finest punt return plays I have seen. J. B. Davis fielded (Wally) Vale's long punt (early in the fourth quarter with Georgia leading 20-6) at our 34 and handed off to Orr, continuing running to the right and drew quite a few Carolina players with him. Orr ran to the left sidelines and had two key blocks by Billy Hearn and Tony Cushmanberry. Nobody came close to touching Jimmy."

Although the Bulldogs do not pass much this season, depending more on their new ball-carrying strength, Orr is proving mighty valuable as a punter. He has averaged 41.2 on 14 kicks.

Jernigan Speaks To Buckhead TD

Frank Jernigan, coach at North Fulton High School, will be the featured speaker at the Buckhead Touchdown Club's weekly meeting Tuesday night at Peacock Alley. Jernigan will show movies of the 1955 North Fulton-Northside game. The meeting is scheduled for 6:30.

He played only one year of high school football at Seneca, S.C., and learned to punt after breaking his collar bone early in that season.

"For six weeks, while my injury was healing, I practiced punting every afternoon," recalls Orr. "Anybody can learn to punt by practicing plenty."

The 66-yard punt return by Orr against Carolina was his longest jaunt as a Bulldog ball-carrier, but he recalls two kickoff returns that were longer in high school against Honea Path and Central, S.C.

SCRIMMAGE SCRAPES: The Bulldogs' first and second-string personnel worked out in sweat, then went in early. Later the reserves engaged in rough work with the B team. . . . Joe Comfort, junior quarterback, and Jimmy Brown, senior center, watched the proceedings from the sidelines. Both were in street clothes, and Comfort swung around the practice on crutches. Both are expected to be out for the Miami game. No one can tell when Comfort will be able to play again.

The Bulldog coach who knows Miami best says Georgia has a chance, but the Bulldogs will need all their newly-productive offense to overcome the Hurricanes. Assistant Coach Harry Wright has scouted Miami its last two outings and is high on their defensive ability. . . . A crowd of 50,000 is expected to see the unbeaten, untied Miamians extend their streak at the expense of the Bulldogs. There is a definite feeling among the Georgia players that the streak can be broken, however.

Richards Gets New Baltimore Contract

Terry Agrees To Continue
As Sally League President

Compiled From Constitution Wire Reports
Votes of confidence, reelections and interracial acts and discussions featured baseball news Monday.

At Baltimore, Paul Richards got a two-year extension of his contract through 1959, a full vote of confidence and a promise of administrative help with no interference from the Baltimore Orioles.

The acts sought to still rumors that the Orioles brass hadn't been happy with Richards, serving the last two years as field manager and business manager, an unusual set-up in major league baseball.

At Columbia, S.C., Bill Terry, former New York Giants star and member of baseball's Hall of Fame, agreed to continue for another year as president of the Class A South Atlantic league.

Terry had submitted his resignation but agreed to continue at the request of the league's directors.

The eight-team league reported an increase of some $15,000 in assets over last year. Columbia officials said their team would remain in the league, although they had faltered during the '56 season.

Sports in Brief

At Dallas, Tex., Texas League directors, attempting to solve a situation created under the New Louisiana interracial law passed Monday, decided that while they would not exclude Negroes from their clubs next season they would not use them while playing at Shreveport. Three of the clubs proposed that Shreveport make comparable substitutions in its lineup.

This met an impasse when Bonneau Peters, president of the Shreveport club, said he would not agree to the proposal.

"The whole thing was pitched into the lap of president Dick Butler, who said he would study the proposals."

Louisiana Monday put its new sports-segregation law into effect, making it illegal for white and Negro amateur and professional players to compete in the same "athletic, training, games, sports or contests."

"Separate seating for spectators is also required under the act."

MORE BASEBALL: The New York Yankees sold outfielder Bob Cerv to the Kansas City Athletics and relief pitcher John (Sonny) Hixson and outfielder George Wilson to their Denver farm club. . . . Chicago's Cubs bought three players from their Los Angeles farm club—outfielder Jim Bolger and Bob Speake and right-hander Gene Fodge. They sold first baseman Frank Kellert and shortstop Bucky Meyers to Los Angeles. . . . Chicago White Sox picked up third baseman Joe Killebrew from Memphis and assigned him to Indianapolis. Also selected from Memphis were outfielder Jim Landis and pitcher Don Rudolph.

Paul Richards

Casey Stengel says Mickey Mantle wouldn't be allowed to play a full season in Brooklyn's Ebbets Field. "He'd probably hit 90 home runs and kill too many spectators," said Stengel. . . . Dallas sold pitchers Fernando Rodriguez, Neil Roberts and John Fitzgerald to the New York Giants.

HORSE RACING: A bone specialist has been called in to treat the injured Swaps after the California horse aggravated a leg injury during a workout last Tuesday. . . . Sir Winston Churchill said he'd "be delighted" to send his three-year-old Lo Pretendent to Laurel International Nov. 12.

MISCELLANY: Rocky Marciano has arrived at the Mayo Clinic for treatment on his injured back. . . . End Lloyd Colterysaha was released to the Baltimore football Colts. . . . Second Lt. Jack Daniels was named as U.S. alternate on the modern pentathlon team that will go to the Olympics.

Fetchick Wins Open Playoff

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15 (AP)—Husky Mike Fetchick captured the biggest prize of his six-year pro golfing career today when he fired a 6-under-par 66 to win a four-way playoff in the Western Open Golf Tournament.

Fetchick finished five strokes ahead of Jay Hebert from Sanford, Fla., who had a 71, and six ahead of former PGA Champ Doug Ford, who wound up at par 72. Youthful Don January blew his chances early by going five over par after only six holes. The best he could do was a 75 over the hilly Presidio course.

The three finishing behind Fetchick each received checks for $2,000.

The long-hitting winner collected a belated birthday present of $5,000. He turned 34 last Saturday. The first prize check was a bigger plum than his entire 1955 winnings of $4,000.

Daniels Sold to Toronto, Riddle, McMahon to Braves

Three members of the Atlanta Crackers' championship cast stepped up the ladder Monday. Outfielder Jack Daniels was sold outright to Toronto of the International League, and pitcher Don McMahon and first baseman Buck Riddle were recalled by the parent Milwaukee Braves.

Daniels figured in a deal, in which Milwaukee bought catcher Carl Sawatski from Toronto for cash and two undesignated players.

The slugging outfielder smashed 34 homers, drove in 88 runs and drew 143 walks last season. Despite his .257 average, he led the Crackers in five batting departments.

McMahon, who appeared in four straight games against Memphis as the Cracker hero in the Southern playoffs, had a 4-2 record. His corking ERA of 2.00 was the lowest in the league, but he did not appear in enough games to gain official recognition.

Riddle, named to the Southern All-Star team before a full season slump shaved his average to .253, belted 19 homers and drove in 65 runs after joining the club on May 11. —OUTLAW

The Longest Week

University of Alabama football presents a sports paradox. A leading debutante in southern football aristocracy since the turn of the century, Alabama is now observing the second anniversary of its last victory. The Tide has not been on the winning side since beating Tennessee, 27-0, on Oct. 16 of 1954, and a triumph over the Vols next Saturday is as likely as Adlai voting for Ike.

Alabama's present plight is somewhat like finding one of the Rockefeller's residing in the Bowers, or Grace Kelly on Canary Row.

Outlar

by a public blast from Vandy Coach Art Guepe, hanged in effigy on the Alabama campus and offered unsolicited coaching advice by various gazettes in and out of the state.

—They Get a Kick Out of Knocking
No, Whitworth didn't care to rebash the Don Orr incident, or discuss his problems. "A lot of people enjoy stepping on you when you're down," he said.

Trouble seems to come in clusters, for during the agonizing week Whitworth's son, Bryan, had broken his arm while practicing football at Baylor prep. It was a compound fracture and the six-three youngster with exceptional athletic ability would play no more football for a long time.

Old grads drifted in and out of the A-Room, most of them pausing to wish Whitworth luck, and soon the harassed coach departed for a pregame meeting with his team.

—Youth Has Its Fling in the Backfield
The Alabama squad has vowed the season will not end without victory, and it put up a fierce fight against Texas Christian. The score was 23-6, but the unbeaten Southwest powerhouse knew it had been in a scrap. Nevertheless, the winless skein was another length longer.

Yet the Tide had outplayed the Texans in the second half. And during the afternoon All-American Jim Swink was limited to 22 yards in eight snaps, perhaps the lowest yardage output of his career. There was no stopping Ken Wineberg, however, and the speedster sprinted 46 and 41 yards for touchdowns.

In defeat there was a flicker of hope for the future. Tide backs ripped off 243 yards against TCU, and Jim Bowdoin and Max Kelly were the only seniors to handle the ball. Sophomores George Salem and Charles Nelson and juniors Jim Loftin and Don Comstock ran with encouraging determination.

After the game, Whitworth visited the press box for an interview. The grim look was still there. He wasn't pleased with the outcome, but he was proud of the manner in which his men had ignored a 16-0 halftime deficit and staged a frantic but futile comeback.

The longest week was over.

Wrestling To Curtail 'Monopoly'

Alliance Consents To Court Decree

DES MOINES, Oct. 15 (AP)—A consent decree in which the National Wrestling Alliance (NWA) agreed to end what the government called "monopolistic" practices in wrestling was approved here today by Federal Judge William F. Riley.

The decree was entered simultaneously with the filing of a government complaint which accused NWA of monopolizing the booking of "more than 96 per cent of all professional wrestling" in the country. NWA is incorporated in Iowa but has its headquarters in St. Louis, Mo.

Sam Muchnick of St. Louis, NWA president, issued a statement in which he denied NWA has violated any federal antitrust laws. He said NWA since it was formed in 1948 "has been a great force for good in wrestling."

NWA agreed to the consent decree, Muchnick said, "only to avoid lengthy and extensive litigation." He said he hoped all 35 NWA members would adhere to the decree.

Paul Jones of Atlanta was listed as an NWA consenting member on the decree.

Tech, Georgia Open Basketball Practice

Both Planning on Much Help From Giant J. C. Transfers

By LARRY FOX

Georgia Tech and Georgia, each counting on a high-altitude junior college transfer for front-line strength, were among the hundreds of colleges around the nation opening basketball practice Monday.

The Yellow Jackets of Coach "Whack" Hyder, 14 varsitymen strong, came within foul-shot distance of their new Alexander Memorial floor for the opening workouts. The floor is still being shelled, however, so for the next few days the workouts will be held on the freshman court in the adjoining Phys Ed Building.

Six lettermen were among the 14 Techsters reporting for the afternoon session—Captain Bobby Kimmel, alternate Captain Lemmy Cohen, Lane Akers, Jim Johnson, Jess Carroll and Cary Phillips. Phillips was held out last year because of injuries but lettered the season before.

The new hope is 6-9 Buddy Davidson, a transfer from North Greenville (S.C.) Junior College.

Others on the varsity squad are 6-5 Frank Inman, Terry Randall, Buddy Blumker, 6-9 John Mansfield and Dan Roberts of last year's freshman squad; Ham Smith, held out last year and now a fine 6-5 prospect, and Danny MacGregor, senior reserve.

Freshmen will come out later headed by scholarship men David Denton, 6-2 all-stater from Bowling Green, Ky., and Buddy Tillman, 6-4 all-stater from Nashville, Tenn.

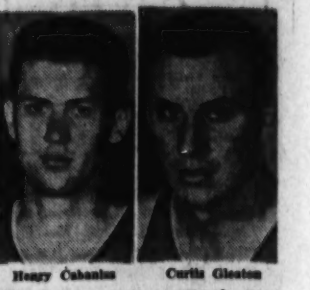

Georgia had some 20 varsity candidates out in the afternoon.

Sophs Abound In Tiger Drills

AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 15—Auburn's sophomore-laden varsity basketball team launched drills Monday under the supervision of Assistant Coach Bill Lynn.

Head Coach Joel Eaves, who doubles in brass as defensive end coach on the football team, will join the squad next Monday.

Reporting were sophs Jimmy Lee, Columbus, Ga.; Ty Samples, Henry Hart, Sam Bowen, Jimmy Waggoner and Rex Fredrick; juniors Dick Mueller and J. B. Bearden, Chatsworth, Ga.; Bobby Tucker, Terry Chandler, Bill McGuff and Bill Gregory, and seniors Jim Natfel and Henry Sturkie.—LOGUE.

Henry Cabanis

guard three years ago, is now back from the service.

Tops among the sophomores off last year's freshman team are Sonny Posa, Joe DeFoor and 6-8 Heywood Hobgood.

Fred Franks, a 6-5 transfer from East Mississippi Junior College, is expected to bolster the forward position with Cabanis moving to the pivot.

The freshman crop is headed by scholarship boys Jim Bettis, the 6-5 Elberton whiz, and Jerome Webb, a 6-6 lad from Shannon who came to school on a football grant but has been forced to give up the grid sport because of a knee injury.

Classroom Injury Puts Morgan Out of Action

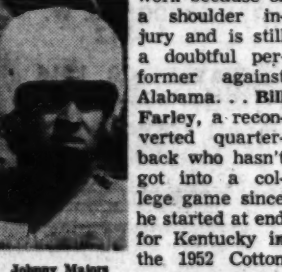

Compiled From Wire Reports
A classroom accident Monday apparently ended Coach Wade's having half-back Earl Morgan in the Mississippi State lineup this season.

Morgan was opening a push-out-type window when the glass shattered and severely cut tendons in his right hand.

Morgan, the W. K. Morgan team's leading scorer last season, had been out all season with a collarbone broken Sept. 1 in the opening practice session.

Walker had hoped Morgan would be able to play Oct. 27 against Alabama.

Morgan, a junior from Greenville, now is expected to be out the remainder of the season, preserving his two remaining years of eligibility.

Johnny Majors

Bowl, returned to duty for the Wildcats. The service returnee broke his hand a week before the season started and had been out since then. . . . Halfback Tony Reginnelli is the only man expected to be out of the Tulane lineup when the Greenies play Ole Miss Saturday. He suffered a dislocated shoulder against Navy.

. . . Halfback Joe May returned to action for LSU and will probably play Saturday. . . . Alabama tackle Jim Cunningham, hobbled by injuries all year and a sideliener for the TCU game, will be back at full speed for Tennessee Saturday. Center John Snoderly and end Ralph Blaylock will be out for another week, however.

. . . Back Billy Lott, a bench man because of a pulled leg muscle Saturday, will be ready when Ole Miss meets Tulane. . . . Sprained ankles temporarily sidelined guard Edwin Johns and tackle Ray Midden at Florida. Gator seniors meanwhile elected tackle Larry Wesley alternate captain for Saturday's game with Vanderbilt.

. . . Two soph. QB Boyce Smith and guard George Williamson, were in as subs for injured Don Orr and Monte Williamson at Vandy.

AROUND THE NATION: North Carolina State lost two linemen for the rest of the season: second string tackle Henry Spivey with a broken ankle and starting guard Larry Cox with a head injury. . . . South Carolina took the day off.

before commencing preparations for its Big Thursday date with Clemson. All Gamecock workouts will be secret. . . . Guard Ted Rollins, injured two weeks ago, rejoined the Wake Forest squad.

. . . Guard Gene Lathery was lost for the week to West Virginia with a sprained knee. . . . Halfback Sonny Randle, tackle Ron Melnik and sub fullback Duane Shelton returned to action and will put Virginia at near top strength for Lehigh Saturday. . . . The Atlantic Coast Conference punting record was broken for the second time this season when Maryland quarterback John Frisach booted one 88 yards against Miami.

Maryland's Saturday game with North Carolina will be a natural; for the Tar Heels' Wally Vale broke the record first this year with one of 84 yards against Oklahoma.

Coach Terry Brennan gave his twice-beaten Notre Dame gridders a long dose of scrimmages Monday. . . . End Dave Kaiser, out last week, too, is the only Michigan State regular listed as doubtful against Notre Dame Saturday.

Burke Boosts Prep Sports To TD Club

Sam Burke, executive secretary of the Georgia High School Association, gave the state's prep sports program a convincing boost Monday as main speaker before the Atlanta Touchdown Club.

The Club was holding its annual High School day with head coaches from all schools in Greater Atlanta the special guests. Coaches were introduced by Sidney Scarborough, city athletic director who also presented Burke.

Honored as the state's prep back and lineman of the week were Quarterback Francis Tarkenton of Athens and guard Richard Gamble of Bass.

4 More Terps Join Injured

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 15 (AP)—The furrows in the brow of Tommy Mont, serving his first year as Maryland's head football coach, deepened today as four more Terps joined the sick list.

No. 2 center Ronald Laneve is in University Hospital in Baltimore, apparently with yellow jaundice, and probably will be lost for the season. No. 1 fullback Tom Selep will be lost with a knee injury for Saturday's game with North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

No. 1 left end Al Beardsley has a leg infection but may be ready Saturday. Ed Cooke, No. 2 right end, suffered a dislocated shoulder in Friday night's 13-6 loss to Miami and is out for the season.

Mont had halfback Fred Hamilton running at Selep's fullback post in today's grueling scrimmage. Jack Healy, who had been sidelined with a bad ankle, returned to his halfback post.

Like Other Ramblers, Hardtop Station Wagon Has High Power-to-Weight Ratio

Wheat Eases On Moisture

CHICAGO, Oct. 15 (AP)—Wheat reacted to weather moisture in the Southwest by falling fractionally to a little more than a year ago, the Board of Trade today.

Wheat was more restrained, while corn continued to dip under the weight of its heaviest pressure. Soybeans and oats ended mixed after both had shown flashes of strength during the day.

While the weekend moisture was quite ample in some spots, a lot more rain will be needed to really break the drought in the western half of the grain belt, grainmen said.

Cash prices for grain were mixed. Corn, No. 2 yellow, sold at 1.15 1/2, down from 1.16 1/2. No. 2 yellow corn, No. 2 white, sold at 1.15 1/2, down from 1.16 1/2. No. 2 white, sold at 1.15 1/2, down from 1.16 1/2. No. 2 white, sold at 1.15 1/2, down from 1.16 1/2.

Ramblers To Be Seen Oct. 25 Include V8s

American Motors will present its 1957 Rambler models on Oct. 25 with a V8 line as well as the regular six-cylinder series.

The cars, to be sold through Nash and Hudson dealerships, will have new styling, a redesigned front end to give them massive appearance and a side color panel running from front to rear and providing a sleek appearance.

Thirteen models are in the 1957 line. Six are V-8s. All are on 108-inch wheelbases. The V-8s are the custom hardtop station wagon and hardtop sedan, custom and super station wagons and sedans. The six series includes the custom and super station wagon; custom, super and deluxe sedan, and a super hardtop. A deluxe station wagon is available as a fleet model.

The parking-turning lights in the front fenders have been increased in size.

The new V-8 engine is rated at 190 horsepower. The six has 125 horsepower, which can be increased to 135 with an optional dual-throat carburetor.

The Rambler will become a separate make of car for American Motors with the introduction of the 1957 models. In the past the car was known as the Nash Rambler or Hudson Rambler, depending on which dealer sold it.

American Motors' engineers say the new V-8 engine is designed for use with so-called "regular" gasoline. It has overhead valves and a dual exhaust system. It uses a twin throat carburetor and has an 8 to 1 compression ratio.

The unitized body-frame construction is used on all models. The V-8 models are 58 1/2 inches in over-all height; the sixes are 58 inches in height.

In the Atlanta area, the 1957 Rambler models will be on display Oct. 25 at Downing Nash, Inc., 486 W. Peachtree St., NW, and Bill Thornton, Inc., 1351 Bankhead Ave., NW.

Lincoln Ups Prices for '57 by 7.4 Pct.

DETROIT, Oct. 15 (AP)—Increases averaging 7.4 per cent on its 1957 model cars were announced by the Ford Motor Co.'s Lincoln Division.

The suggested list prices, minus numerous extras for taxes, handling and optional equipment, range from $4,101 for the Capri series hardtop coupe, to $4,808 for the Premiere series convertible.

The suggested list prices do not include distribution and delivery charges, preparation and conditioning charges, federal excise taxes, state or local taxes, license fees, optional equipment and accessories.

Power brakes and rear license plate frame, optional in 1956, and a new remote controlled outside rear-view mirror have been made standard on the Lincoln line.

Lincoln attributed the price increase to "rising costs of labor and materials as well as Lincoln's styling advances and engineering changes."

Dealers will display the new cars Tuesday.

May Cotton Lone Loser

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Cotton futures closed 10 cents a bale lower to 65 cents higher today. Only May futures showed a decline. Hedge selling and trade liquidation discouraged rallying tendencies in current crop months.

New crop deliveries attracted commission house and New Orleans buying, with gains at one time extending to better than $1 a bale. Profit-taking later pared part of the advance.

Most of the support in near months stemmed from mill covering against textile sales. Prevailing discounts in distant months and expectations that more cotton acreage will be retired under the soil bank in 1957 were influences in buying of 1957 crop trading months.

Oklahoma's 'Alfalfa Bill' Dies at 86

Ex-Gov. Murray Often Used Force

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 15 (AP)—Former Oklahoma Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, 86, died quietly today, ending a stormy and colorful life.

Murray, ninth governor of the Sooner State, died in a coma. Two of his sons, a grandson and granddaughter were at his bedside in a hospital here.

Gruff and frank, the mustachioed "Alfalfa Bill" was a prominent figure in both state and national politics during his four-year term as governor.

OFTEN CALLED MILITIA

What he could not win by words he often attempted to obtain by force. On an average of every 45 days during his Democratic administration, which began in 1931, he ordered out the National Guard.

On one occasion he sent troops to a Red River bridge between Texas and Oklahoma and forced Texas to drop its toll charges.

A frequent subject of national cartoonists because of his appearance, the tough, tall and shaggy Murray, nevertheless, did not change his ways nor his appearance.

DEFTED FOR

He gave ground to no one, including the late President Franklin Roosevelt, whom Murray defeated in 1936. That year Murray left the Democratic ranks to support Alf M. Landon.

Roosevelt got his revenge two years later when he visited Oklahoma as Murray sought a comeback in the 1938 gubernatorial primary.

Roosevelt said Murray, although he did not mention his name, was a "nationally known Republican."

The effects of Roosevelt's appearance apparently hurt Murray's chances and he ran third.

Murray, who was the father of another Oklahoma governor, Johnston Murray, sought the office four times.

He was one of the framers of Oklahoma's constitution, and first achieved a major political office in 1914 when he was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives.

In later years he retired and wrote several books, before becoming deaf and blind, and too feeble to move about without assistance.

With a scarf knotted around his neck, even in the warmest weather, and that pulled down on his coat collar, he would appear to sell his literature.

PROMOTED COLONIES

In his early years, he was variously a cowboy, farmer, book-seller, cotton picker, newspaperman, teacher, lawyer and unsuccessful promoter of a plan to settle an American agrarian colony in South America.

The elderly statesman, who never passed the opportunity to talk at gatherings, had a nimble tongue for picturesque phrasing. His reputation also attracted colorful names to him. He was known as "Alfalfa Bill" to early day settlers because he raised the first alfalfa crop in the Cherokee Indian nation and spoke at a farm meeting on its virtues.

Murray was born during a storm on a farm near Collinsville, Tex., Nov. 21, 1869. Son of a poor family, he attended school only in fits and starts, but ran away from home to attend college.

NATIONAL RETAIL DRY GOODS ASSN. LEADERS HOLD ATLANTA CLINIC

Hold Folksy Sales Touch, Stores Told

Retailers were urged Monday not to forget that they are dealing with people, not machines, and to avoid adoption of any modern scientific methods which might obscure this fundamental of selling.

Addressing a retailers clinic in Atlanta, William Burston, manager of the merchandising division of the National Retail Dry Goods Assn., told several hundred southeastern merchants:

"The department store is a business founded on people, not machines. Only what applies to people should be the yardstick of critical judgment and not what applies to machines."

He said an examination of literature devoted to retailing had convinced him that:

"We're being made out to be something we ain't. The critics are 'scientific' in an area where art, method, manner, experience, know-how, 'feel' and people predominate."

The clinic is a one-day affair being sponsored jointly by the NRDA and the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Assn. NRDA directors meet Tuesday.

Sam Flanel, general manager of the controllers' congress of the NRDA, in another address at the opening day sessions, said every store should make a profit of at least 10 per cent before taxes and recommended employment of able controllers as one way to accomplish this.

John C. Hazen, NRDA vice president for governmental affairs, warned the merchants that the anticipated government surplus once hopefully estimated at several billions probably will end up about 700 million dollars and noted that government employment now is at the highest level since July, 1954, except for the Christmas rush periods of 1954 and 1955. He said possible extension of the Fair Labor Standards Act will be the retailers' most serious legislative problem in 1957.

4 Helicopter Models To Be Shown at Fort

Four helicopters representing some of the types used by the Army will land at Ft. McPherson at 7 a.m. Tuesday and remain on display until 5 p.m.

They will include the H13, a small craft; the H19 which carries six soldiers; the H34 that will hold 14 persons, and the 20-place H21. All are single motored except the H21, which has two.

GI Families Rate Civilian Hospital Aid

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—President Eisenhower today approved a directive providing for operation of a new program authorizing use of civilian hospitals and facilities for the immediate families of active duty servicemen effective Dec. 7.

The directive deals with the revised military dependent's medical care program which Congress set up in legislation enacted at the last session. Eisenhower signed the bill on June 7 and it stipulated that the program would go into effect six months later.

In a statement, Eisenhower said that at this time "at least 40 per cent of our service families" are unable to receive adequate medical care from the government.

The directive he approved, implementing the law, "assures hospital care at all times to the wives and children of active duty personnel," the President said.

In his statement, Eisenhower said that under the new program the cost to a service family for hospitalization in any facility, civilian or military, will be limited to a payment of either $25 or an amount equivalent to the subsistence charge of $17.5 a day, whichever is the greater.

"For this charge," the President said, "all hospital services and doctors' fees for the period of hospitalization are covered."

The President said the program also continues provision for medical care for dependents of both active and retired personnel in military facilities if space is available.

One Church Asked of All Lutherans

(Copyright 1956 by The New York Times Co.)
HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 15—By unanimous rising vote, followed by sustained applause, the 20th biennial convention of the United Lutheran Church in America expressed here today its desire to merge with "all or any" Lutheran groups in this country.

It then proceeded to put teeth in its proclamation by authorizing a special commission to meet with representatives of other bodies to "consider such organic union as will give real evidence of our unity in the faith and to proceed to draft a constitution and devise organization procedures to effect union."

Presumably, this meeting will be convened in Chicago before the end of the year.

MERGER CONSIDERED

Four of the 16 Lutheran denominations in the United States are prepared to talk merger at the Chicago gathering. They are the United Lutheran Church with 2,300,000 members, the Augustana Lutheran Church with 540,000, the American Evangelical Lutheran Church with 25,000, and the Finnish Evangelical Lutheran Church (Suomi Synod) with 35,000.

Three other bodies now considering a merger of their own will be represented jointly at Chicago. They are the American Lutheran Church with 900,000 members, the Evangelical Lutheran Church with 1,000,000 and the United Evangelical Lutheran Church with 60,000.

MISSOURI DENOMINATION

It is known that representatives of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, second largest of all Lutheran groups with more than 2,000,000 members, will not be present in Chicago.

Tonight, the United Lutheran convention began debate on a long report from its board of social missions.

The report hailed the 1954 decision of the Supreme Court outlawing racial segregation in public schools as "in harmony with Christian conventions."

Here's how you can send your youngster to college...

At $175 to $200 a month, few families could meet college expenses from current income. Instead, they save for it over a period of years. For example, say your goal is $7,000. Based on ATLANTA FEDERAL's current 3½% rate, you can save as little as $25 each month if you start when your child is age one until high school graduation time. At age six, you can save $40 each month and reach the same goal — at age ten, $64 each month. ATLANTA FEDERAL's twice-a-year returns can save you nearly 30% of your college expenses, if you start saving early enough. Why not come in and start tomorrow?

200 Canvassing Here Today For Dollars-for-Democrats

More than 200 volunteer workers will canvass Atlanta and Fulton County from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday as this area joins the national Dollars For Democrats Day to raise funds for the Stevenson presidential campaign.

Dr. Jack C. Norris, Fulton County chairman, said the workers will solicit contributions of any amount in downtown stores, offices and business establishments, as well as house-to-house and street-to-street solicitation in residential sections.

"I believe this is the largest money-raising attempt at the grass roots level ever held in this country in an election year," Dr. Norris said. "Every penny collected will go to National Democratic Headquarters to help elect Stevenson."

The workers will start from their headquarters at 492 Peachtree St., NE. Dr. Norris said.

HIS SON KILLED?

Father Sees Flier Wave, Fall to Death

NEW AUGUSTA, Miss., Oct. 15 (AP)—A Mississippi farmer, told his son would fly over the farm home, watched today as a Navy trainer waggled its wings, disappeared behind some trees, and crashed.

The pilot, killed when the yellow Navy trainer dived almost vertically into the ground, was not immediately identified.

The craft, from the naval air training station at Pensacola, Fla., fell on the Perry County farm of George Cochran in south Mississippi.

Cochran and his wife told officers they had received a letter from their son, George Everett Cochran, 22, a naval air cadet at Pensacola, saying he planned to fly over the farm today or tomorrow on a solo training flight.

Other witnesses said the plane flew low and the pilot appeared to be buzzing the farm. Cochran, said he saw the plane's wings wave and then saw the pilot wave.

Edward Willkie Dies; Brother of GOP's Wendell

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Oct. 15 (AP)—Edward E. Willkie, 59, president of Pacific American Fisheries, died of a heart attack at his home here today.

TV Study Alone Can't Win Degrees, Broadcaster Says

The chances of ever earning a college degree simply by viewing televised lectures and sending in "coupons" are very slim, according to Frank E. Schooley, president of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters.

"Although educational broadcasting and telecasting can go a long way toward helping a student get his degree, there still must be the active classroom participation between student and teacher," Schooley said.

Schooley, director of broadcasting at the University of Illinois, is in Atlanta to kick off the 32d annual NAEB convention here
